Carter finds his match; flies high on election trail

by DIANE MERMIGAS

When Jimmy Carter's name is called on the chartered jet that's making endless campaign stops across the country these days, two men turn their heads to answer.

And it was planned that way.

One is the Democratic party's leading presidential hopeful and the other is a United Air Lines pilot from Mount Prospect.

Both share the same name and, because of it, have been riding on the same airplane for the past three months.

It all began early this year when the former Georgia governor decided to charter a United Air Lines 727 jet to carry him and his staff around the nation in search of primary election victories.

When a list of eligible pilots was scanned and the name of James Kenneth Carter appeared, candidate James Earl Carter thought it might be "lucky" and "unique" to have his namesake in the pilot's seat.

That's the way the Northwest suburb's own Jimmy Carter tells the story of how he got the job last March as the pilot for the campaign aircraft.

It's proved to be an exciting and novel twist in Carter's 20-year career as a commercial airplane pilot.

Traveling from one big city to another is not out of the ordinary for him — but the throngs of the candi-

Clavey convicted on tax, perjury charges

by DAN BARREIRO

Former Lake County Sheriff Orville Clavey Friday was convicted in U.S. District Court on three counts of tax fraud and one count of perjury. A six-man, six-woman jury also found Clavey innocent of three counts of perjury and one count of conspiracy to commit extortion.

Defense attorney George Collins said he would file a motion by June 14, asking for a new trial. Collins said the two guilty verdicts and one not guilty verdict conflicted.

Clavey, 43, of Gurnee, had no comment on the jury's decisions. He was convicted on three charges of filing false tax returns for the years 1971 to 1973, and on one charge of receiveing a $400 kickback in 1973 for arranging a series of lie detector tests in the sheriff's office.

THE GUILTY VERDICT on the 1971 and 1972 returns relate to charges that Clavey received money from a trucking contractor, a lounge owner, a vending machine operator and a house builder in return for favors.

Clavey was acquitted on a charge that he had conspired with Chief Deputy Jerome P. Schuetz to extort $1,000 a month from Martin DeFoor, owner of Cheetah II, a bar featuring nude dancers in Half Day, from September, years 1971 to 1973.

He also was acquitted on perjury charges alleging he lied to a federal grand jury in September 1974 when he denied three matters: receiving the extorted money, knowledge of sheriff's department wiretapping and filing inaccurate tax returns for the years 1971 to 73.

That final acquittal and its apparent conflict with the guilty verdict on false tax returns prompted Collins to say he will file a mistrial motion within 10 days.

GIVEN THE GUILTY verdict on the lie detector kickback in 1973, Collins says the guilty decision on filing false returns in that year is consistent.

But he said the other two guilty verdicts on the tax charges contradict the innocent verdict dealing with perjury on the same tax returns.

"The conflict is apparent to everyone," said Collins. "If you have a verdict that is guilty on two counts and not guilty on another all dealing with the same testimony, then thre's a conflict."

U.S. Assistant Atty. George Gilkerson disagreed. "The jury just didn't understand the indictment," he said. "And that's my fault for not explaining it more. They obviously throught he got illegal money each year."

"THE JURY ASKED for further information but Judge Lynch declined," said Collins. "The jury foreman was a well-educated, authoritative person, and I think he had a problem getting a verdict. Some persons probably wanted to find him guilty on something. Others probably wanted to find him not guilty," he added in an attempt to explain why the conflict arose.

U.S. District Court Judge Wiliam J. Lynch set Clavey's sentencing for July 2. The maximum sentence would be 14 years in prison (three years on each tax fraud charge and five on the perjury charge) and a fine of $20,000.

Although Atty. Samuel Skinner said he doesn't expect Clavey to receive the maximum sentence, he added "Some period of incarceration is warranted because it involved a breach of the public trust."

Skinner praised Gilkerson and others working with the prosecution for their investigation.

"It wasn't without problems," he said. "They had to face a lot of problems due to all out efforts in Lake County to undercut us.

"In any situation where an individual is somewhat popular, certain factors pro-Orville Clavey and anti-Orville Clavey exist and they had to deal with those."

Skinner also discussed the granting of immunity to certain witnesses. Collins had been critical of such tactics, believing those witnesses would "point the finger" at Clavey to ensure their own immunity, even if their testimony was false.

"When dealings are in cash and behind closed doors, and no one else is present, you just have to have cooperation," said Skinner. He said that his office was "stonewalled" until Schuetz and DeFoor were granted immunity and agreed to testify.

Concerning African policy

Kissinger, not Reagan at fault: Crane

by WANDALYN RICE

Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, and not former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, is the person who is being "irresponsible" in statements on U.S. African policy, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, said Friday.

At a hastily called O'Hare Airport press conference, Crane said Kissinger privately has told members of Congress he would take stern action to prevent the Soviet Union from extending its influence in Rhodesia and South Africa.

This statement, coupled with recent Kissinger statements encouraging black rule in Africa, "are best calculated to create a situation where you run the risk of loss of life and the risk of vastly more American involvement than Gov. Reagan has suggested," Crane said.

Pres. Gerald Ford and his campaign aide Melvin Laird have branded Reagan as "irresponsible" because of statements earlier this week. Reagan said he would consider sending American forces into Rhodesia in order to prevent racial war between blacks and their minority white rulers.

CRANE, WHO IS chairman of Illinois Citizens for Reagan, said Reagan's proposal was for the United States and Britain to cooperate to ensure a transition of power in Rhodesia without "a genocidal bloodbath."

Crane said Kissinger met with Republican members of Congress March 24 and privately assured them the U.S. would take action to prevent Soviet incursions in Africa. "The lan-

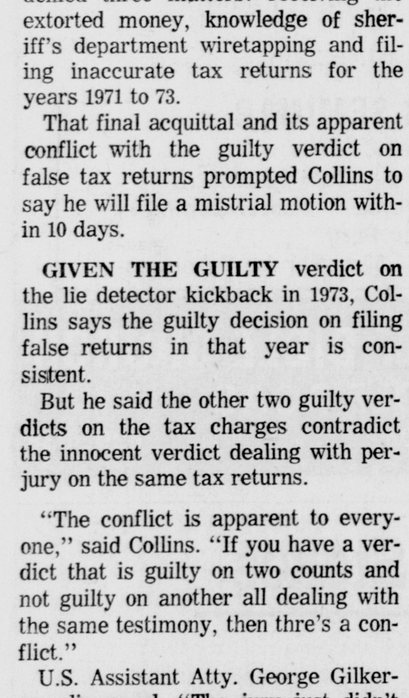
Escaped antelope evades capture



by JOE SWICKARD

An Indian Black Buck antelope is on the loose in the Northwest suburbs having escaped from Scientific Small Animal Laboratory and Farm, Arlington Heights.

The small tan and white year-old female antelope has successfully eluded capture despite several sightings and the best efforts of the Arlington Heights police and owner Charles Hume.

Sgt. Jack Weber of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said the animal was observed at Prospect High School early Friday morning but escaped before a tranquilizer gun could be brought to the scene.

WEBER SAID the antelope was later seen near Beck Lake in the forest preserves near Des Plaines.

He said the deer-like creature is "flighty" and "she's very difficult to apprehend."

Hume said he found the antelope outside its compound at the laboratories, 401 W. Golf Rd., Monday night.

"We found her out in the driveway and tried to run her back into the pen but she took off on us," Hume said.

HE CAUTIONED that attempts to capture or corner the animal could result in her death.

"They are very spooky animals. The St. Louis Zoo lost their entire herd when a small dog got in their compound and the antelopes killed themselves by running into a wall," Hume said.

He and Weber said anyone seeing the animal should call police and then try to keep the animal in sight.

Hume said the animal, less than three feet tall and possibly pregnant, can find food during the summer but the native of the warm India subcontinent may have difficulty coping with the harsh Illinois winters.

EVEN WITH THE aid of the police tranquilizer gun, Hume said capture of the antelope is a long shot at best.

"They are so skittish, she could take off in the woods and not be found before the tranquilizer is administered," he said. Hume said he doubted the antelope will be captured now that she has reportedly made it into the woods.

"In a way, I'm happy she got that far. At least she's in the woods and not in the middle of town or on the roads," he said.

Clavey found guilty on tax, perjury rap

Former Lake County Sheriff Orville Clavey Friday was convicted in U.S. District Court on three counts of tax fraud and one count of perjury. But the six-man, six-woman jury found Clavey innocent of three other perjury charges and one count of conspiracy to commit extortion. Citing a conflict between the two guilty and one not guilty verdict, defense attorney George Collins said he would file a motion asking for a new trial by June 14. Clavey was convicted on three charges of filing false tax returns from 1971 to 1973, and one charge of receiving a $400 kickback in 1972 for arranging a series of lie detector tests in the sheriff's office.

Niles man guilty in murder

Homer Hanrahan, 46, of Niles was found guilty Friday of the 1974 torture murder of his estranged wife, who was found beaten and drugged to death in the trunk of a car in a Palatine garage. His son, Michael, 20, was found innocent of the murder charge by the 10-man, two-woman jury. However, both men were convicted of conspiracy, kidnapping and aggravated battery in the slaying of Marian Hanrahan, 42, in her Niles home. Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Collins ordered $100,000 bond against each man revoked and set June 28 for sentencing.

Columbo bond $250,000

Bond for Patricia Columbo was set at $250,000 Friday, but the murder suspect was denied a preliminary hearing in the Niles branch of Cook County circuit court. Associate Judge George J. Zimmerman set bond for Miss Columbo, 19, indicted this week for the murder of her father, mother and brother in their Elk Grove Village home. William Murphy, one of Miss Columbo's attorneys, said she would not be able to post the 10 per cent necessary to be freed pending her trial. She had been held without bond since she was arrested at her Lombard apartment May 15.

By Ford, Reagan backers

First ballot nomination predicted

by STEVE BROWN

Two key Illinois supporters of President Ford and ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan both predicted narrow first round victories at the GOP convention in August.

In an interview with The Herald, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said private polling by his staff indicates Ford will have 1,130 delegates — exactly the number needed for the nomination — committed to him when the convention begins.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, said at an O'Hare Airport press conference he has seen figures giving Reagan 1,137 delegates after next week's primary elections in California, Ohio and New Jersey. Crane managed Reagan's Illinois primary campaign.

PERCY SAID HIS staff was able for the first time Thursday to determine Ford, who has been severely tested by Reagan in the primary elections, could win enough delegates to get the nomination on the first ballot.

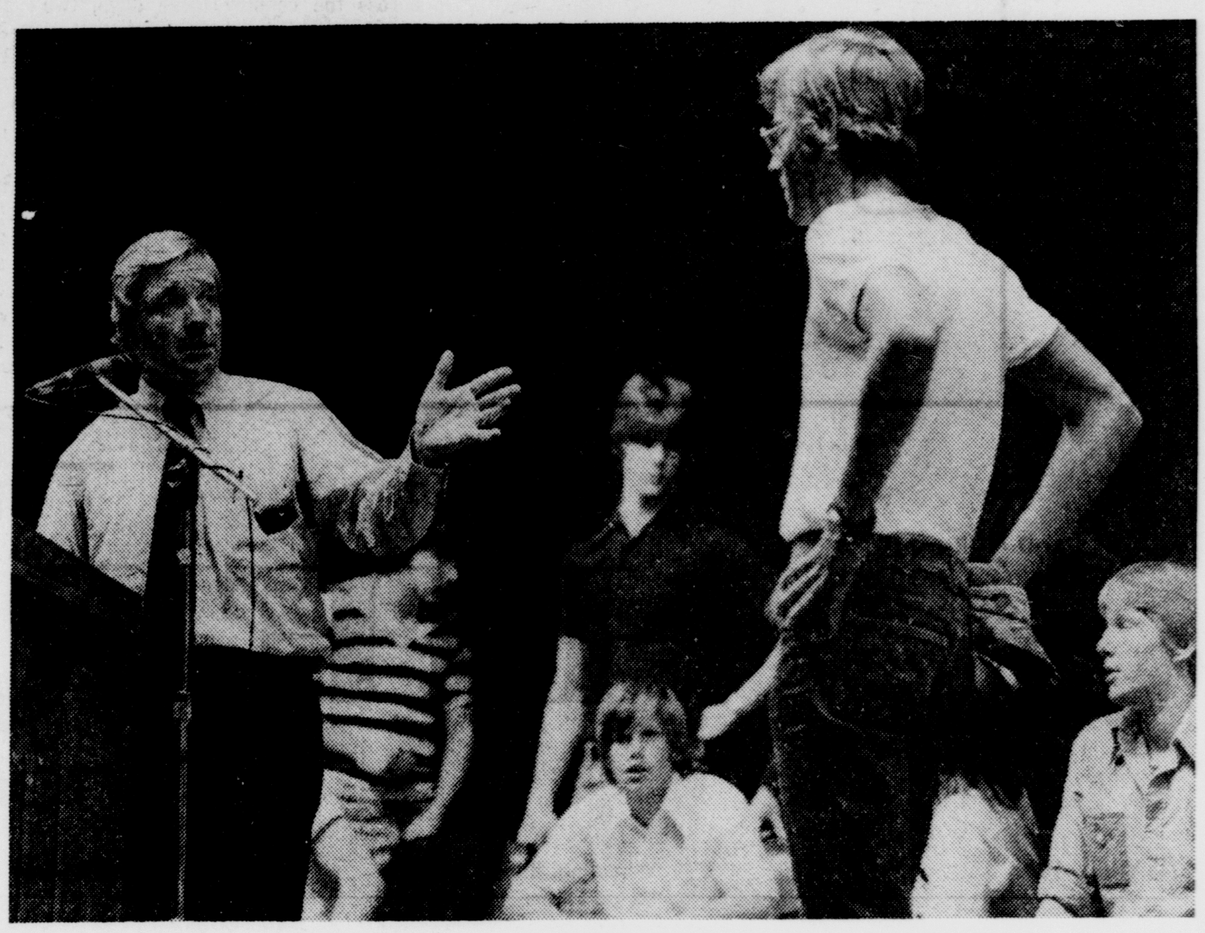
He noted the delegate count concedes California to Reagan.

In the official delegate counts, Ford now has 822 delegates while Reagan has 654. More than 300 Republican convention delegates will be elected in primaries Tuesday.

In other political areas, Percy said he does not plan to make any effort to gain the GOP vice presidential nomination. He said the close geographical location of Illinois and Ford's home state of Michigan rules him out as a running mate with Ford.

PERCY SAID HIS first political priority after the Senate adjourns next fall will be to campaign throughout Illinois for gubernatorial candidate James Thompson.

The senator admitted that if the Democrats nominate U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to run for vice president, GOP candidates, especially Thompson, would face a "very tough, uphill fight" to win election.



U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., met with students at Arlington High School Friday.

Percy also predicted ex-Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter will win the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot.

Percy spent most of the day in the Northwest suburbs. He met in the morning in Rolling Meadows with a group from Cook, Lake and McHenry counties that will serve on his Senate Advisory Committee from the 12th and 13th Congressional Districts.

PERCY TOLD the group he hopes to meet with them several times each year to discuss issues. Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Frend Yonkers and Arlington Heights Mayor James Ryan serve on the committee.

Percy also addressed about 1,500 students at Arlington High School. Percy said he was speaking to many high school groups throughout Illinois urging them to register to vote and take part in the political process.

The senator got a good reception from the students, who applauded loudly in response to many of Percy's views, including a position favoring the decriminalization of marijuana.

U.S. Steel to boost prices

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp., the world's largest steel producer, announced Friday it will raise prices for its steel products an average of 1.7 per cent, effective July 16.

It was the third price increase announced by U.S. Steel in less than a year. The company announced a 3.8 per cent price increase last August and a 6 per cent increae on sheet and strip steel products in April.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. announced similar increases earlier Friday.

U.S. Steel said the increases, ranging from $20-$25 per ton, only partially recover increased costs for materials, services and labor, including the third-year effects of the United Steelworkers Union contract that becomes effective August 1.

U.S. Steel said the price increases will amount to 7 per cent for structurals, 8 per cent on carbon or alloy plates and an average of 7.5 per cent on rods and wires. Double submerged arc weld pipe, which is produced from plate, will be increased 6 per cent.

The Council of Wage and Price Stability is conducting a "short term review" of the April price increases, despite claims by U.S. Steel that rising costs demanded the increases.

"The council plans to review recent trends . . . to determine whether the timing of and magnitude of the recent rises are consistent with the price movements which occurred during earlier recoveries," the council said back in April.

Last summer, under substantial pressure from the council, the steel industry imposed a smaller price increase than it originally intended.

Little resistance to Syrian invasion

Syrian troops marched into the Mount Lebanon passes Friday, the first foreign force to invade Lebanon's mountainous heartland in 30 years, and drove out Moslem leftist defenders without firing a shot.

Lebanon's ragged and disorganized leftist Lebanese Arab Army, which had vowed to resist the Syrian invasion, asked Damascus, Libya and Algeria to send military delegations to Beirut for peace negotiations.

A column of Syrian troops moved up from the Bekaa Valley frontlines into the Mount Lebanon region and took up positions at the town of Tarshish, 25 miles east of Beirut, local reporters in the region said.

Leftists who had vowed to defend it pulled back without making any attempts to resist, they said.

The latest advance put the Syrians only four miles from the towns of Aintoura and Metein where fighting was still reported between leftists and Palestinians defending their positions and Christian trying to recapture them following their rout last month.

It also marked the first time that foreign troops had entered the mountainous Lebanese heartland since 1946 when the last of the French mandate forces withdrew.

In Moscow, Western diplomatic sources said the Soviet Union has added 15 warships to its fleet in the Mediterranean in the past week, bringing the total to about 70. They said this appeared to be a sign of concern about the Syrian invasion in Lebanon.

Get-tough policy for hijackers OKd

Justice ministers of 18 European nations agreed Friday in Brussels, Belgium, on tougher measures to combat hijackers, bombers and other terrorists. The agreement must also be approved by a later meeting of foreign ministers of the nations, and in many cases, passed by national parliaments before it goes into effect. The centerpiece of the accord was a change in traditional rules governing the granting of political asylum, Belgian Justice Minister Herman Vanderpoorten said. He said the ministers agreed that some acts — such as hijacking, serious offenses against diplomats, the taking of hostages and bombings — will no longer be considered political crimes. Instead, he said, persons committing these acts will be treated like ordinary criminals and will either be extradited to the country where the crime took place or tried in the country where they seek refuge.

TWA attendants threaten to strike

A flight attendants' union threatened to strike Trans World Airlines at midnight Friday. A TWA spokesman said there had been no face-to-face negotiations since Sunday but that the two sides continued to communicate with each other Friday through a federal mediator. TWU officials said there appeared to be little or no hope of averting a strike after 14 months of negotiations. TWA said a decision on whether to suspend operations in the event of a strike would depend on whether pilots, mechanics and other employes refused to cross picket lines.

Wires cited in crash of cable car at Vail

An accident which took four lives last March on a Vail, Colo., ski lift sometimes used by President Ford was caused by unraveling of wires in a lift cable, the U.S. Forest Service reported Friday. But the report said it may be months before experts can determine why the wires failed. The Forest Service, said, however, that investigators have found no evidence to indicate any "sabotage or other tampering" with the Vail Gondola II lift, where eight persons were injured in addition to the four who died in March.

Albert predicts Hays to resign key post

Stung by the Wayne Hays affair, House Democratic leaders Friday ordered a task force to find ways of assuring "propriety and the appearance of propriety" in the way Congress spends public money. At the same time, Speaker Carl Albert and other congressmen predicted Hays would voluntarily resign his most important committee chairmanship soon after Tuesday's Ohio primary, where he is a candidate for reelection. Albert announced creation of the Democratic task force and said one reason for it was Elizabeth Ray's allegation that Hays put her on his House Administration Committee payroll to serve as his mistress. But he said there were "other things" disturbing the leadership as well, including reports that some House members double-billed the government for trips home.

Panel bans fireworks next year

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has ordered a ban on all firecrackers larger than the "ladyfinger" size, leaving this Fourth of July the last noisy one except for commercial displays, agency officials said Friday. In an order to be published next week the commission cast aside objections both from oriental religious groups — who wanted no ban at all — and from safety groups who wanted a total ban in place before Independence Day.

Ford elated at report

U.S. jobless rate at 7.3%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economic forecasts for 1976 continued to improve Friday when the government announced that unemployment fell to 7.3 per cent in May while inflation slacked off in the wholesale market.

"Unadulterated good news," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a ranking member of Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

Administration sources indicated the developments increased the possibility President Ford's advisers might lower their initial prediction of 6 per cent inflation and 7 per cent unemployment by year's end.

The Labor Dept. said unemployment declined 0.2 per cent in May and wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent, less than half the April rate.

The number of persons with jobs hit a record high for the fourth staight month, climbing by 300,000 to 87.7 million. Women benefited most.

Ford went out of his way at a White House ceremony to convey his pleasure to reporters.

"These two signs should encourage the American people that the administration's job-producing program is a good one," he said.

Despite cautious talk among Ford's top economists that their earlier 1976 forecasts were too high, they clearly had expected the recovery to weaken by now. Each new month of continued strength means Americans are getting a better deal than they were promised.

Inflation nonetheless is expected to pick up this summer as metals price hikes begin to show up in finished products like appliances and cars. The job market will be stretched soon by an influx of vacationing students.

Down substantially from a recession peak of 8.9 per cent, the jobless rate has not increased in the last eight months — a trend unmatched since the pre-recession days of 1973.

Unemployment declined by 180,000 to 6.9 million in May. Women benefited primarily because of continued expansion in the traditionally female job fields.

Employment in some other areas was limited by strikes. Nonfarm payroll jobs declined slightly, whereas they otherwise would have risen by about 150,000.

In the transportation equipment industry, including autos, a job surge continued.

Joblessness fell to 6.8 per cent for women; 18.5 per cent for teen-agers and 12.2 per cent for blacks. It increased slightly to 5.6 per cent for men.

Since Ford has called an economic summit with U.S. allies to discuss prospects of renewed inflation, the slack in wholesale prices was a welcome surprise. After an 0.8 per cent jump in April, the May increase compared more favorably with a virtual five-month lull running through March.

A 1.3 per cent jump in processed food prices was partially offset by a 0.1 per cent increase in industrial goods. Incentive price cuts to auto dealers and suppliers of homebuilding materials helped limit industrial prices.

Although beef and veal prices declined, pork, poultry, fish and dairy products went up. A price decline for livestock helped ease overall farm prices, which increased 0.6 per cent following a 4.2 per cent jump in April.

The Wholesale Price Index stood at 181.8 in May, meaning that goods costing $100 in 1967 now cost $181.80.

Rate of jobless stays same here

Unemployment among Illinois workers in May remained at 7.3 per cent, where it has been the last two months, and it matched the national jobless rate for May, the state Dept. of Labor said Friday.

The number of Illinois workers without jobs dropped from 365,300 in April to 364,300 in May according to seasonally adjusted figures but the decline was not enough to reduce the unemployment rate.

The figure is up 0.3 per cent from a year ago when 348,500 Illinois residents were out of work.

From April to May unemployment went down in the six-county Chicago region from 7.5 per cent to 7.4 per cent. Some 233,900 were jobless in the area in May compared with 237,200 in April.

State Labor Director Donald Johnson said the decrease in the Chicago area was due in part to strong activity in the construction industry.

46 killed in plane crash in Guam

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — A Lockheed Electra turboprop plane ferrying contract workers Friday plunged tail first shortly after take off and exploded into a fireball at Guam International Airport, killing 46 persons.

Airport authorities said "there were no survivors" among the 45 persons aboard. The driver of a pickup truck also was killed when the burning wreckage plowed into his vehicle.

Air Manila International's four-engine plane with a crew of 12 was chartered by Kentron, an American construction company on Wake Island, to ferry 33 Filipino contract workers for a five-hour flgith back to Manila.

Witnesses said the plane was only a few feet off the ground when it suddenly fell tail-first back onto the end of the 10,000-foot runway and bounced across a highway. The plane exploded on impact and turned into a flaming wreck, they said.

All of the passengers on the chartered aircraft were Filipino contract workers on their way home from Island 1,290 miles east of here, officials said. Nine of the killed workers were under contract with the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration and the rest worked for a private company.

The plane stopped in Guam to refuel. Guam is served by Pan American and Japan Air lines but their regular flights have been temporarily suspended since Typhoon Pamela devastated this U.S. territory.

The wreckage narrowly missed houses and a small softdrink stand operated by four children.

Authorities at the airport would not speculate on the cause of the crash.

The last major plane crash on Guam was on Sept. 19, 1960, when a chartered World Airways DC-6 crashed. Seventy-eight persons died and 12 survived in that crash.

Loveletters by Nixon called 'a sordid hoax'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — An aide to Richard Nixon Friday called reports the former president wrote loveletters to the wife of a European diplomat "a sordid hoax."

Col. Jack Brennan, Nixon's chief of staff, said the letters suggesting that Nixon while president was having an affair with the unidentified woman "are obvious forgeries."

Brennan said Nixon's Washington attorney had contacted British literary agent Scott Meredith, "putting him on notice of the fraudulent nature of the letters purportedly in his possession."

Two British newspapers, quoting Meredith, Thursday reported Nixon wrote the purported letters during the height of the Watergate affair that drove him from office Aug. 9, 1974.

The papers quoted Meredith as saying he believed the 22 loveletters were genuine, and that handwriting experts had studied them and "regarded them as being in Mr. Nixon's hand."

Ask Andy

Scallop—handsome, tasty animal

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannicas 1975 Yearbook of Science and the Future to John K. McCormack, 8, of Staten Island, N.Y., for his question:

WHAT ARE SEA SCALLOPS?

If the scallop lived on land, people would gather around to admire him. He is a juicy little mollusk animal, living inside a pair of fancy shells. They are like two little fans, hinged together. Sometimes he opens his shells in a sort of smile. Then we see a row of tiny blue eyes that looks like a pearly necklace. Too bad, but the scallop belongs to the salty sea and he usually stays out of sight.

Oysters and clams are called bivalve mollusks. This means that they are soft, juicy little animals that live inside a pair of shells. Most animals of this sort are stodgy stay-at-homes and spend almost their entire lives squatting on the floor of the sea.

The scallop also is a bivalve mollusk, and sometimes he too squats on the sea bed. However, he is more handsome and more talented than his kinfolk. And he is the only one of them who can travel. He can swim through the water, clacking his little shells open and shut as he goes. And he can walk along in an awkward way on his one clumsy foot.

There are at least 300 slightly different scallops in the sea, living in tidal waters and way out to a depth of 300 feet. Each type lives inside a pair of neat round shells, and in some cases both shells are alike. The average scallop, however, has one rather flat shell for sitting comfortably on the floor. The other shell is carved with wavy grooves and, naturally, the edges are scalloped

In every case, the two shells are held together by a movable hinge. This is a strong round muscle of meaty flesh. It squeezes and stretches to make the two shells open and close. When the shells open, the sea water floats in, bringing the scallop his breathable oxygen, plus a few drifting scraps of food.

The scallop also opens and closes his shell when he goes traveling. Actually he travels by jet propulsion — by taking in a gob of water and squirting it out with a jerk. And of all things, the scallop has about 100 little blue eyes to see where he is going. What's more, he can squirt out the water in different directions to make himself travel forward, backward, sideways, up or down.

His eyes look like little blue pearls, and his fancy shell is tinted with yellow, pink or red. Certainly he is a handsome little sea creature — and also talented. Surely nobody would want to eat such a nice little creature. Ah, but we do. And the sea scallop turns out to be a wonderful fish dish, tasty and nourishing.

Village awaits Prospect decision on renting police

Wheeling still is interested in providing Prospect Heights with police patrols to bring added revenue to the village, but the new city has delayed action on the proposal for at least three months.

"We're waiting for them to come to us at this point. I told them we're still interested," said Acting Village Mgr. Thomas Markus.

Prospect Heights Mayor Richard E. Wolf has appointed several aldermen to a public safety committee which will investigate ways the city can provide full-time police protection.

The committee will consider contracting with the Cook County Sheriff's police, contracting with a neighboring municipality or starting the city's own police force with the limited funds available the first year.

Wolf szaid the city council probably will not make a decision on the police protection matter for about three months or until the city begins to receive revenues from existing state and county tax sources.

In the meantime, the Sheriff's police will continue to provide the community with the same level of police protection it received before incorporating earlier this year.

Markus first suggested the possibility of contracting police service to Prospect Heights as an alternative to cutting five men from the village police force. Wheeling officials suggested the cutback as a way to save $80,000 in the village's 1976-77 budget. Wheeling trustees later voted against the cutback.

Markus has said the police service could be provided to Prospect Heights "without any additional strain" on the village department.

The one-year contract, which is estimated to cost $195,000, would provide Prospect Heights with around-the-clock protection and use of Wheeling Police Dept. vehicles, equipment, jail and communications' systems.

Thomas Merle, a Prospect Heights alderman, has said contracting with Wheeling would "seem to cost much less than contracting with Cook County Sheriff's police or trying to start our own department right away."

Cook County Sheriff Richard J. Elrod has said it will cost Prospect Heights $264,825 the first year for full-time police protection.

Vote recount confirms failure of parks annex

A recount of Tuesday's referendum votes confirmed the Wheeling Park District failed in its effort to annex apartment complexes on Old Willow Road.

Roger Bjorvik, park attorney, Friday said a canvass of votes confirmed earlier figures that the referendum passed 94-11 in the park district, but was tied 23-23 in the area to be annexed.

"The results were exactly the same and because of the tie, the election didn't carry," he said.

Under state law, the referendum had to be approved by a majority of voters in each area.

The park board in March unanimously approved a plan to annex the Gladstone Glen apartments and the Quincy Park quadrominium apartment complexes. both complexes are on old Willow Road east of Wolf Road.

The complexes are in the newly formed city of Prospect Heights, but are not served by a park district. About 1,500 residents are affected. The annexation would have added about $6 million to the district's $98 million assessed valuation.

The two complexes in September rejected a similar annexation effort by the River Trails Park District.

ONE MAN is an airplane pilot from Mount Prospect and the other, a leading Democratic presidential candidate. But both men fly on the same plane and go by the same name — Jimmy Carter.

Carter meets his namesake in sky

date's fans waiting at the airport gates are.

Eager reporters, supporters, security guards and Carter staffers crowd the plane after it lands. The safe landing is where one Carter's job ends and the other Carter's job starts.

While Carter the candidate is out shaking hands, making speeches and kissing babies, Carter the pilot is coping with the lay-over by reading or sight-seeing.

Carter's political interests have swelled because of his new assignment, and he spends a lot of time reading about the energetic candidate he knows both in and out of the public light.

"I find Jimmy Carter to be very much behind the scenes as he is in the public view," says the pilot. "He's a very charming person, very simple and down-to-earth. What probably impresses me most about him is that he is very consistent — always pleasant with a sense of humor."

The campaigner is "amazingly prompt," Carter says, "mostly because he has a rigorous schedule to keep up with."

There is, however, always time for friendly chatter with staff members, Carter said.

"I remember the first time Jimmy Carter came up to the cockpit to meet me. I gave him a book tracing the Carter family tree and autographed it 'To Jimmy Carter, From Jimmy Carter,' " the pilot said.

During the three or so days each week that Carter flies the chartered jet, the two men talk mostly about the weather, the crowds and the candidate's peanut farm back home in Plains, Ga.

"He's always concerned about dry spells and how they will effect his crop. He can't wait to go home for a day or two after a primary," Carter said.

The pilot, who at 44 is seven years younger than the candidate, says the Georgian is a real peanut patron.

He virtually exists on Coke and bowls of unshelled, salted peanuts during his cross-country crusades.

Carter usually sits quietly by a window, reviewing a speech he will give or conferring with aides. A legion of reporters numbering as many as 45 on some trips, finds its place in the back of the plane along with five Carter staff members and a plane crew of four.

So, are two Jimmy Carters on a plane better than one? Well, it's not all that confusing because they don't look alike. They don't even part their hair on the same side.

But, they are both affectionately called "Jimmy" by everyone and that's where the fun starts.

"It's been the source of many jokes everywhere we have gone. But after seeing the tremendous time and energy that Carter puts into his campaigning, I would say I have the better job," the pilot said.

"I only work three days each week. He campaigns at least 16 hours a day, six days each week."

The whole experience has added a new dimension to the life of a recent widower with four grown children, the pilot said.

Autographed, glossy black and white photographs line table tops in the family home, 1302 Greenwood Dr. They will become part of the good memories he can savor once his special assignment has ended and he returns to his regular passenger flights.

"And I'm going to ask one favor of Jimmy Carter when he is elected president," says the pilot, noting that no one on the plane dares use the word "if."

"I'm going to ask him if I can just sit in the cockpit of Air Force One and look around."

Durable toys of long ago popular at shows

Collecting
with Grace Carolyn

Last Chrismastime I attended a different sort of antiques show: an all-toys show. It was held in St. Louis at a large hotel, and I wondered how they could attract the 50 dealers advertised, if they sold nothing but old toys.

I shouldn't have wondered, considering how many persons are collectors of antique playthings. There is something intriguing about children's toys of long ago. Perhaps it is because of their being made of more durable materials than today's "built-in obsolescence" plastics.

Among the offerings at the show I mentioned was one booth with only toy soldiers, and the dealer explained to me that these have enjoyed worldwide popularity for over 200 years. The oldest ones he showed were modeled on the 18th century Prussian Frederick the Great. His collection also included Napoleon's soldiers, British Redcoats, and later World War I figures. He wasn't interested in World War II. "Not yet," he said. The material of his soldiers were wood, lead, papier mache and a sort of plaster composition. None were of plastic.

MANY BOOTHS were devoted to dolls of all ages, sizes and types. The beautiful German and French bisques and chinas were popular, outdoing each other in fanciful dress and period costuming. One booth contained a grouping of First Lady dolls, made about 1940, dressed in copies of the inaugural gowns. I was especially taken with the Grace Coolidge doll, my favorite, dressed in her deep red velvet and pearl "flapper" uneven hemline dress.

The vogue for old cast-iron toys is "in" as ever. You might say any old iron pull-toy is worth its weight in gold! The beautiful, fancifully ornate carriage shown, carrying a doll, with a brass bell atop which ding-a-lings when the toy is pulled across the floor, is a gem which would bring a fancy price. (Picture courtesy Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

One would think that women would be most interested in toys, but not so. The bulk of collectors and dealers in this field is male, and there seems to be no limit to the prices they will pay to get what they want.

A woman (excuse me, ERA-types) may give more thought to a purchase, since she is usually more conscious of bargaining, and often must market on a budget. But show a man an antique he wants or needs to fill his collection, and his hand is on his checkbook. That's why dealers prefer the evenings at antiques shows, when the men come back to buy what the wife saw earlier that afternoon but hesitated about. Sometimes too long, to her chagrin.

Other old toys shown at the antiques fair were electric trains; 20th century antiques, of course. Names to watch for are Lionel, Ives and American Flyer.

Another name to be remembered is A.C. Gilbert. Gilbert's Erector Set, first manufactured about 1913, is an ongoing favorite. Louis Marx started out along about 1920 making almost everything in the toy line except dolls and toys on wheels. He did make trains, however. His trains were cheaper than Lionel's and his outlets were mostly the five and dimes and the mail order houses.

A GERMAN manufacturer, Schoenhut, competed with American manufacturers, with his articulated wooden animals and circus figures. My husband remembers they had a Schoenhut circus when he was a boy. I wish I owned just one animal from that set today. Each one might be priced at $25 or $30, depending upon condition. They originally sold for about $4 a set.

Many toys never seem to lose popularity, but collectors look for those made prior to 1940, in original boxes if possible. Lincoln Logs, Mah-jongg sets. other "table" games (Monopoly is an ongoing favorite,) marbles, all are desirable. In marbles, collectors want sulphides (with tiny animals imbedded inside) carnelians and agates made of real stone, German swirl blown glass, and "Benningtons," made of highly colored glazed clay.

There was just one thing missing at the all-toy antique show. Children.

Weddings

Jane Czerechowicz—David W. Cook

Six attendants, including an 8-year-old flower girl, preceded Jane Czerechowicz down the aisle of Trinity United Methodist Church in Mount Prospect for her marriage May 8 to David W. Cook.

Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Czerechowicz, Mount Prospect, chose her sister, Cindy, as maid of honor, and Mary Flannigan of Cary, Linda Dolan of Arlington Heights, Betty Gufka, Hoffman Estates, and Barbara Tomanek, Mount Prospect, as bridesmaids for the 4 p.m. double ring service.

An organza gown with lace appliques and pearl beadwork was Jane's choice in wedding gown. A beaded pearl headpiece held her lace-trimmed veil, and she carried white and yellow roses, carnations and daisies with baby's breath.

HER ATTENDANTS were in yellow print voile gowns with solid yellow bodices and matching print jackets. They carried daisies, carnations, roses and mums with baby's breath.

In a gown identical to the maids was the flower girl, Patrice Chereck, a cousin from Chicago. Patrice's flowers were carried in a basket.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cook, Arlington Heights, was attended by David Dolan, Arlington Heights, as best man, and Michael Flannigan, Cary, James and Michael Dolan, Arlington Heights, and Ken Gufka, Hoffman Estates, as ushers.

A DINNER reception for 300 guests was held at the House of the White Eagle in Niles, after which the newlyweds left on a Florida honeymoon. They are now residing in Arlington Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Cook

A '71 graduate of Prospect High and a '73 graduate of Harper College, Jane is employed by Wickes Furniture in Wheeling. David is a '65 graduate of Arlington High and a '75 graduate of the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus. He is with General Binding, Northbrook.

Myrna Hamm—William R. Scholle

A garden reception at the Mount Prospect home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sorgatz followed the wedding of Mrs. Sorgatz' daughter, Myrna Lynn Hamm, and William R. Scholle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Scholle, Arlington Heights. The 100 guests sat at yellow and white umbrella tables and were served champagne from a fountain on the patio bar.

The double ring wedding took place May 8 in the Lutheran Church of Martha and Mary in Mount Prospect, with Myrna wearing the white silk organza gown with Alencon lace bodice previously worn by her oldest sister. A Juliet cap with seed pearls held her fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade of white mums, yellow tea roses and baby's breath.

MRS. SORGATZ made Myrna's headpiece and also the rosette headpieces for the bridesmaids: Dyane Hamm of Lake Villa, sister-in-law of the bride; Linda Abbott, of Fort Collins, Colo., sister of the bride; and Gayle Scholle, Arlington Heights, sister of the groom.

The maids wore gowns of white lace overlay on pale blue taffeta, and they carried white lace umbrellas with blue cornflowers, carnations and baby's breath.

The bride's 2-year-old nieces, Dawn Abbott, Fort Collins, and Betsy Braun, Mount Prospect, were flower girls wearing white eyelet pinafores over blue floor-length gowns. They wore matching eyelet headpieces and carried wicker baskets of daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Scholle

GEOFF MUGLER, Elk Grove Village, was best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Gregory Hamm, and the groom's brothers, Robert and Mike.

Myrna, a graduate of Forest View High, studied at Columbia College, Harper College and at Western Illinois University, Macomb. She is employed at the Cork and Cleaver Restaurant, Schaumburg. Her bridegroom, who is part owner of a Mount Prospect liquor shop, graduated from Maine East High, served in the Air Force and studied at Harper and Triton College.

The newlyweds are residing in a Mount Prospect apartment.

FOR THE 11 A.M. double ring wedding Ann chose a white jersey gown with lace trim, a fingertip lace mantilla and a bouquet of daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her sister, Jan Nawoj, Mount Prospect, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Joan O'Connor, Fairfield, Iowa; Deb Nixon, Quincy, Ill.; the groom's sister, Sandy Cessna, Forest Park; and Nancy Forch, Arlington Heights.

Their cape gowns were in mint green knit, and mint green hats with satin ribbons and bouquets of yellow and white daisies, carnations and baby's breath completed their ensembles.

THE GROOM'S brother, Charles, was best man, and ushers were Stephen Bing and Robert Ackerman, Hinsdale; Larry Skisak, La Grange; and the groom's brother-in-law, Terry Cessna, Forest Park.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Sugar is not poison; just high in calories

Dear Dr. Lamb — Whenever nutritionists appear on the TV talk shows they always criticize the public's excessive consumption of refined sugars. However, I have never heard them elaborate as to what harmful effects occur when the body metabolizes refined sugar. Is a potentially harmful chemical being added to sugar through the refining process?

Dear Reader — Yes, you hear those remarks about sugar all the time. It certainly confuses a lot of people as your letter indicates. No, sugar does not contain a single harmful substance. Nothing is added in refining that is toxic to the body. In fact all the carbohydrates in starch, cereals, milk, vegetables, fruit and any other source are converted in the body to glucose sugar and metabolized the same way. It all becomes the very same sugar for metabolism and release of energy.

What is all the fuss about then? It is overdone but sugar is dehydrated cane and beet juice, a simple natural food without additives. The problem is that the dehydrated food, sugar, contains an enormous amount of calories which can contribute to obesity and related problems. Also the sugar calories replace calories from other foods that provide you with bulk, minerals and vitamins.

Nutritionists would prefer that you used foods that not only give you needed calories but also provide vitamins, minerals and bulk. Of course, people who need to control or decrease their calorie consumption need to avoid sweets and sugars. But that is not all. They need to avoid all high calorie foods including starches, fats and alcohol.

To give you more information about sugar I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-8, Sugar and Starch: Carbohydrates. Others can obtain this information by forwarding 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your request to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Could you comment on the practice of some school athletic coaches having students do laps as punishment for some infraction of rules of play? Could this be harmful for a 13-to 14-old for, say, an hour?

Dear Reader — I have had parents ask me this before. It shows very poor judgment on the teacher's part. After all, a teacher of physical education should hope to encourage his students to want to exercise and enjoy it. You don't accomplish that by using exercise as a punishment.

Tom Sawyer knew better than that. If he had told the other kids that white washing a fence was work or punishment he would have ended up doing the whole job himself. The whole idea in getting kids — and grown-ups too — interested in doing something is to make them enjoy it or strive for some goal. You don't do that by making it a punishment. Can you imagine getting children to want to read by punishing them by making them read? It would never work.

Whether or not an hour of running laps would be harmful depends entirely on what level of physical conditioning a person has achieved. If the teenager is in pretty good shape it will not hurt but if he has had no exercise at all for months it would cause a lot of sore muscles, sore tendons and in some instances could be harmful.

Yellow jackets around?

Go after the nests now

Dear Dorothy: We love summer, but we've had so much trouble with yellow jackets around our place the last couple of years, we dread what may come again. Our two teen-agers were bitten often and we got some antihistamine on hand just in case. How does one rid an area of these swarming pests? — Jennie Buhl

Get an aerosol insecticide designed for next-attack. They shoot a straight stream 8 to 12 feet. The insecticide has to reach the nest — drenching it, or it won't kill the wasps. The time is right because the nests are started in May. By September a nest may well harbor 5,000 wasps. Recent studies show that they are attracted to food and hence cluster around restaurant garbage piles and in picnic grounds where people are particularly careless. Do your youngsters wear perfume or apply things to their hair? Turns out stinging insects confuse the odors with food smells. Anyway, go after those nests now.

Dear Dorothy: Inherited a beautiful cotton quilt and with no instructions on how to launder it was perplexed. A friend helped in an experiment that worked perfectly. Made an enzyme pre-soak solution — using just enough so that the water felt silky. Submerged the quilt all at one time in this cool solution and let it soak about six hours. Then rinsed it thoroughly in cool water and gently squeezed out most of the water. Hung across two lines in the shade, it took two days to dry. Came out perfect. — Elizabeth Soule

Dear Dorothy: Always did like radishes. Like them more now after learning three average-sized radishes provide a third of one's daily vitamin C need — and only six calories. — Carol Lloyd

Dear Dorothy: Would you please explain what freezer burn is and if it's OK to eat food that has it ? — Barb Crayton

Freezer burn is the name of the condition on frozen foods caused by foods improperly wrapped so that the cold air has drawn out much of the moisture, leaving the food dry and tasteless. In meat, the outside surface gets spotty first, then light in color. It won't hurt you to eat it but it won't be much fun, especially if it is something to be broiled. You can sometimes salvage meat intended for a pot roast by adding seasonings to the liquid in which it's cooked. But even here there is a good chance you cannot rescue much taste. This is why every instruction on freezing food emphasizes that it be wrapped in either a proper container or moisture-vaporproof wrappings. It's a must.

Episcopal Church starts $100 million fund drive

The financially beleaguered Episcopal Church has laid plans to raise as much as $100 million and asked its presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. John Maury Allin, to devote a major portion of his time over the next three to five years to the effort.

"Money is the sacrament of the world which represents power and life and everything else," Allin was quoted as telling the three-million-member denomination's executive council in pleading for approval of the campaign.

The executive council has approved at least a preliminary plan for the fund-raising drive and it will be presented to the church's General Convention when it meets in Minneapolis in September.

For the past several years, the national church budget has been basically static. The council will ask the convention to approve a $14.1 million budget for 1977, a mere $300,000 over the 1976 budget. Budget requests for 1978 and 1979 are $14.3 million and $14.7 million, respecitvely.

THE PLANS for the special $100 million drive came from a specially appointed commission headed by Bishop Christoph Keller Jr. of Arkansas.

Allin dubbed the fund-raising plan "a partnership fund" and Episcopal officials said while exact details need to be worked out by the convention, it was envisioned that the funds would go to such areas as support for projects currently needing subsidy, such as three predominantly black church-related colleges, overseas dioceses of the church, church in society efforts and evangelism.

In addition, an as yet undetermined amount of the money collected would be left in the individual diocese for the work of those dioceses.

There were reports of some doubt among council members about the plan, with questions being raised about perpetuating "structures that perhaps should not be perpetuated," according to one Council member.

Some Episcopal officials said the only reason that the proposal carried was because of Allin's highly charged appeal to support the effort.

Stocks plunge, Dow drops 9.90

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices plunged Friday in sluggish trading on the New York Stock Exchange in reaction to a persistent rise in interest rates. Investors ignored favorable employment and wholesale price news.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 2.13-point loser Thursday, fell 9.90 points to 963.90. For the week, the closely watched blue-chip average lost 11.33 points.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 0.98 to 99.15, the NYSE common stock index shed 0.50 to 52.78 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased 32 cents.

Declines routed advances, 1,018 to 362, among the 1,812 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 15,960,000 shares, down from the 18,900,000 traded Thursday.

Trendsetting Citibank of New York, acting for the second time in two weeks, triggered a widespread move among banks to raise their prime lending rate for key corporate customers a quarter point to 7.25 per cent.

Rising interest rates make money more difficult to obtain and tend to make short-term money instruments more attractive than stocks. "This was the big reason for the drop," said Newton Zinder, vice president of E.F. Hutton & Co.

Alcan Aluminum topped the Big Board actives, off 2 to 25-1/8 on 274,600 shares, including a block of 150,000 shares at 25. Union workers have defied court orders to return to work at the company's British Columbia, Canada, operations.

Marcor was the second most active issue, up ¼ to 37 on 171,500 shares.

Matsushita Electric was the third most active issue, up ¼ to 23¼ on 155,600 shares, including a block of 151,900 shares at 23-1/8.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by 8 cents. Volume totaled 1,810,000 shares, compared with 2,040,000 traded Thursday.

The way we see it

Palatine's flu plans praised

Plans are under way to coordinate mass immunizations this fall to protect us against the rare swine flu influenza virus.

We are particularly pleased with the efforts of Palatine Township officials who in April recognized the major effort needed to ensure that the immunizations are properly handled. Township officials formed a special task force which has blossomed to include representatives of several local villages, school and park districts, hospitals and other agencies.

Today's meeting of the task force at the township hall in Palatine is the first step toward development of a coordinated program in this area to administer the vaccination to township residents. The county health department welcomes the local effort for there is much to be done before the innoculations are to be given in mid-September. Hundreds of volunteers and professionals are needed.

Many of us remember the massive scale of the polio vaccine program in the mid-50s, but few realize the kind of administrative cooperation that was necessary in that program and will be needed in this one.

Other townships and villages not involved in the Palatine Township task force should consider setting up similar area organizations which ultimately, along with the Cook County Health Department, will make the swine flu innoculation program a coordinated effort in the Northwest suburbs.

Pre-school children need polio protection

Northwest suburban parents of pre-school children should take note of recent reports of the resurgence of polio in neighboring nations, mainly Mexico, that could cause cases to develop in this country.

Polio has become a forgotten disease. It was almost wiped out in this country a decade ago when virtually all parents made sure children were protected from the disease by newly developed vaccination.

In recent years, people have been under the misconception that the disease was dead and some have failed to have children treated against getting it.

Illinois law makes it mandatory for all school-age children to be treated against polio. This, however, leaves two areas open: pre-schoolers and transients.

For safety's sake we urge parents to have their pre-school children vaccinated against this disease as soon as the child is able to accept the vaccine.

Dorothy Meyer's column

This column is a dead issue, since it is the annual garden report

Dirt under my fingernails, green feet and a grouchy cat with a head cold — all these things remind me that it must be time for my annual gardening column.

(This is remotely related to my one lone household hints column which is said to have set homemaking back 75 years, and serious gardeners may choose to disregard this latest release of mine. Please feel free — I'd like to forget it too.)

(And what the cat's cold has to do with anything, I don't know, but he seems to get one every year about this time. Maybe he's allergic to little tomato plants; and there appears to be a correlation between my attempts to apply mentholated salve to the cat's nose and my tomato plants' retardation. The vet says use Vicks for the cat, gardening books say plant tomatoes Memorial Day, and when both occur at the same time the results must be related.)

GARDENING TIP — Vicks is not good for young tomato plants.

CAT CARE TIP — Cats and Vicks don't mix.

HEALTH TIP — If a cat with a cold sneezes all over you when you are wet through from planting tomatoes in the rain on Memorial Day, you will probably feel icky by June 2.

MISCELLANEOUS — Green feet come from walking barefoot through freshly mowed grass that is super juicy from a lot of rain.

Others years in my garden-and-cat life have not been especially noteworthy either, but here are my notes anyway.

Four years ago my thumb was so black that I caused even artificial arrangements to wither and die in the pot. Cat was just a kitten then and very happy with life.

Three years ago cat matured and begat all over the neighborhood also suffering his first head cold as I was experiencing disastrous success with my first seed-and-grow kit. Although the cat sneezed over most of the tomato babies and sat on the rest, there were so many survivors I could hardly wait for Memorial Day.

Two years ago I exercised more restraint and cat had fewer tomato plants to sneeze on. They too survived his cold — we hadn't heard about Vicks for a cat's cold yet.

Last year my green thumb must have blown a gasket — my garden was phenomenal — because this year it reverted to killer-black.

Plants I started in the house grew tall and skinny and then keeled over.

Plants I started outside grew tall and skinny and then the rabbits ate them. (Note: Vicks, unlike mothballs, does not bother rabbits.)

Memorial Day I started everything all over again and now I have cold, green feet and dirty fingernails.

CONCLUSION: A green thumb is not forever; green feet and Vicks may be.

Hydrant safety bill an 'effort to serve'

Several days ago you published an editorial ridiculing a bill which I introduced to require annual inspection of fire hydrants.

Your editorial suggested that the General Assembly had more serious concerns before it, in view of the state's precarious financial condition. Your editors took pains to add some asinine and juvenile remarks about the use to which hydrants are put by dogs. They ought to have more serious concerns.

Of course our greatest concern at this time must be and is the fiscal crisis facing Illinois. While I am not a member of the House Appropriation Committee, I am certain you are aware that I devote a good deal of my legislative time to the problems of funding state government and the entities which depend on the state as a funding source.

But there are other problems, not perhaps of cosmic consequence, but of concern to some, that are clearly and necessarily part of my job as state representative. So when a group of constituents comes to me with a problem which to them poses a serious threat to their safety in their homes, such as the Glenbrook Countryside Homeowners Association did in specifically requesting the measure at issue, I am not in the habit of telling them, as you suggest. "Go away. Come back next year. We have more important things on our minds."

AS I TRIED to point out in my news release on the bill, we tend to take such vital protections as fire hydrants for granted. If a hydrant is in poor working order, the defect is not discovered until its use is actually and critically needed.

It's certainly too bad that Paddock Publications has no better use for its time and space than to put forth childish editorials attacking a sincere effort to be of service to concerned constituents.

Seniors would use new Colfax sidewalk

(The following relates to village discussion of the need for sidewalks along Colfax street as reported in The Palatine Herald on May 19.)

The availability of the Palatine Township Senior Council bus is by appointment one day in advance. The one-way fare is 25 cents. There is a wait for a return pick-up.

It is wrong for Mr. Jim Koffend of Peko Tile Co. to imply we can use the bus "any old time." Many senior citizens enjoy walking and do walk to the Palatine Post Office. So for him to say a "sidewalk on Colfax Street is ridiculous" is wrong.

It would be far better to give a little thought to others and to aid the community as well.

Park program detail didn't get through

This letter is being written after talking with two Arlington Heights Park District officials. The problem . . . not receiving the summer schedule of park district activities.

Ater realizing April is the month the schedule is mailed and the beginning of May registration time, along with reduced swim pass deadline, I had to call Olympic Pool and have a schedule sent. Since the schedule wasn't received until May 12, I had already lost out on the first session of swim classes for my youngest child and missed the reduced swim pass rate for an older child.

I was told by an official that this information was not only offered in the schedule, which the Boy Scouts were to deliver and none of our neighborhood received, but also advertised on the radio, listed in the Paddock paper, but in a flyer distributed to the schools as well. I have checked with neighbors who listen to the radio, read the paper, and have children attending Ridge School . . . only the school flyer was received. My children attend a parochial school and we received nothing.

To put it bluntly, I am very upset and I'm not alone. Enclosed is a petition signed by neighbors who did not receive the schedule.

One final note, the official I spoke to informed me since my oldest child's swim pass expired in April, this should have been a clue to renew her pass to get the reduced rate. What if we just moved to Arlington . . . . "Sorry you missed out ma'm, welcome to Arlington Heights!!!"

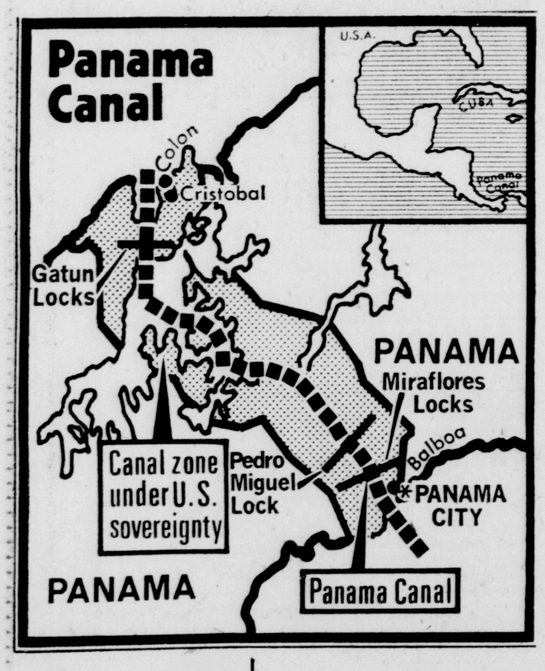
Panama Canal a place searching for an issue to happen—and it did



by JOHN VIRTUE

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Every couple of months 20 men gather around a conference table on a two-square-mile resort island in the Pacific to discuss the subject which has become the surprise issue of the U.S. primary elections: the Panama Canal.

By late this year or next at the latest, the men expect to finish work on a new treaty spelling out the date when Panama will take over the operation and defense of the 51-mile-long canal from the United States.

It then will be up to the U.S. Congress to approve the treaty.

The U.S.-Panamanian negotiations on Contadora Island, just 17 minutes by plane from Panama City, are the culmination of talks that began back in 1964, following the Panamanian riots which killed 22 persons.

Little public attention had been paid to the canal issue until earlier this year when Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan began to criticize the negotiations.

"We bought it. We paid for it. And they can't have it," Reagan said of the canal, which opened for business in 1914.

Reagan has called Panamanian head of state Gen. Omar Torrijos a "tin-horn dictator" and been called in turn a washed-up actor and a "jolly cowboy" ignorant of the facts by Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd.

But the Panamanians apparently are having second thoughts about answering Reagan in kind and the rebuttals have stopped.

Torrijos, who seized power in a military coup in 1968, has not commented on the U.S. primary elections and the canal issue, but he was recently quoted as saying, "We are going to decolonize ourselves whether negotiating or fighting."

Panamanians dismiss such tough talk as rhetoric the 47-year-old military man must employ in a delicate balancing act between the vociferous far left and Panama's mainly conservative financial community.

Although an admirer of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, Torrijos has expelled Communists as well as rightists from Panama.

"We want to take over the canal tomorrow, but we know we have to negotiate in a practical way," says Torrijos' first foreign minister, Carlos A. Lopez Guevara, now a member of the Panamanian negotiating team. "We're not trying to kick the Americans out tomorrow."

Lopez Guevara said in a recent interview that the United States was willing to turn over administration of the canal to Panama by the year 2000, but wanted to retain its military presence for a longer period.

He said Panama wanted complete control — administrative and defense — by the year 2000.

"The defense of the canal is the most delicate point because it involves a foreign force, and nobody likes foreign troops on his soil," Lopez Guevara said.

Under an eight-point set of principles signed in 1974 during a visit to Panama by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the United States agreed the U.S. presence "in perpetuity" would be eliminated and the 1903 treaty would be abrogated.

Lopez Guevara noted that the 1903 treaty had not even been negotiated and signed by a Panamanian, but rather by a Frenchman, Phillippe Bunau Varilla, who sold his rights to the canal to the United States for $40 million.

"We're getting close to a solution," said Lopez Guevara, looking forward to resumption of talks on Contadora Island in July.

He noted that 83-year-old Ellsworth Bunker, head of the U.S. team, has been at the negotiations so long he has picked up a smattering of Spanish and at times no longer needs the help of an interpreter.

Parents of deaf protest Wilmot School move

Parents whose deaf children attend Wilmot Scool, Deerfield, are continuing their protest against having their children transferred to Kensington School in Arlington Heights.

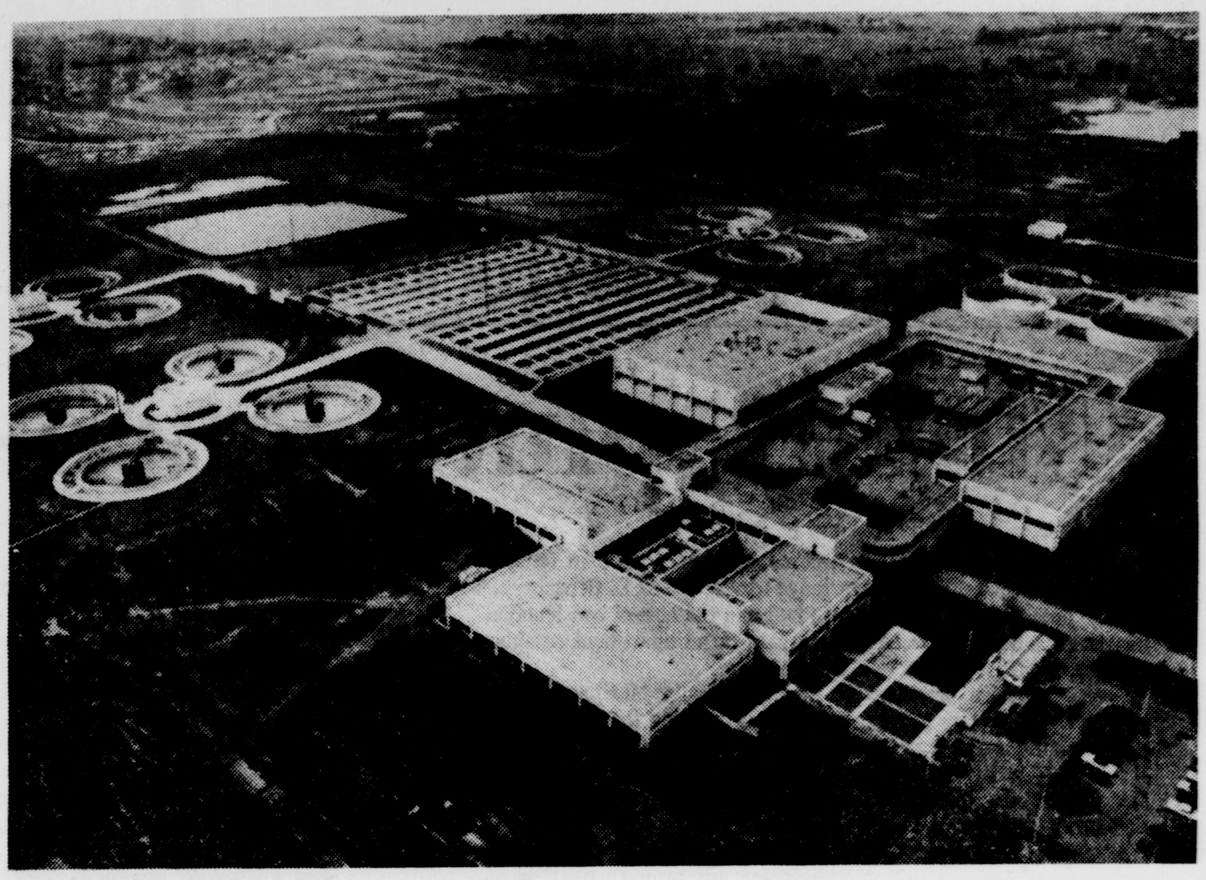
Parents representing the nine grade-school children at Wilmot attended a Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization Board meeting this week to tell the board they are happy with their children's education at Wilmot and they do not want them switched to the NSSEO deaf program at Kensington.

Dr. Edward McDonald, NSSEO director, has recommended that the 10 member districts of the special education cooperative consider the possibility of returning the Wilmot children to Kensington.

After an hour of statements by parents, the board defeated a motion, in a 4-4 vote, that would have allowed parents rather than the school districts to have the final word on placement of deaf children.

The board then voted to recommend that the member districts consider sending the Wilmot children to Kensington, but that no child would be transferred if the switch was not in the child's best interest.

Parents said Thursday they were not satisfied with the board's action and would continue their protest at meetings of member-district school boards.



THE JOHN E. EGAN Water Reclamation Plant in Schaumburg was officially dedicated by officials of the Metropolitan Sanitary District Friday. The plant, on Meacham Road south of Schaumburg Road, will treat sewage from six Northwest suburbs until the remaining water is 99 per cent pure. The plant is named for a former president of the MSD board of commissioners and is one of the largest plants of its kind in the world, officials of the MSD board have said.

Any other route quicker than Stevenson

With the Memorial Day weekend past, travelers can expect somewhat freer movement of traffic through the Chicago area, but motorists are still advised to avoid the Stevenson Expressway.

A complete resurfacing project is continuing on the expressway and has narrowed traffic to one lane in each direction from Chicago to Joliet.

State police say severe traffic jams have been occurring there, particularly during weekend rush hours, and no relief is in sight at least until the end of summer.

Even during nonrush-hour periods, traffic has been constantly bumper-to-bumper along the giant bottleneck.

Police advise motorists to bypass the Stevenson and use alternate routes such as I-294, I-57 and the Dan Ryan Expressway when leaving the area.

The alternates may take you a little out of your way, but you'll save time in the long run, police say.

Generally good weather is anticipated too but there is a chance of showers and thundershowers in Illinois and Indiana Saturday and Sunday, says the National Weather Service.

Otherwise, higher tempratures with highs in the 80s are predicted. Lows should range from the 50s in northern Wisconsin to the 60s south of Chicago.

The weather service says high temperaturs can be expected into early next week.

Concerning African policy

Kissinger irresponsible: Crane

guage was explicit enough and strong enough to go beyond what Gov. Reagan is proposing," Crane said.

Crane said insurgents fighting against the white Rhodesian government with the backing of Mozambique, Tanzania and Zaire clearly have both Soviet and Chinese backing.

Kissinger's statements on black African rule, including one that the U.S. would "prefer" that black rule be accomplished without war, "are aiding and abetting black Africans in contemplating violence," Crane said.

IN OTHER ACTIVITY involving Africa Friday, the State Dept. announced Sec. Kissinger and South Africa's prime minster John Vorster will meet later this month.

U.S. officials said the talks, scheduled for June 23-24 somewhere in West Germany, are part of a major U.S. effort to avert racial war in Rhodesia.

South Africa has been the main diplomatic link between Rhodesia and western governments that do not have diplomatic relations with that white-ruled country.

Kissinger's aims in meeting with Vorster were described as preventing race war, promoting negotiations for a transition to a black majority government and averting military intervention by the Soviets in the situation.

Group urges no reactors near cities

Nuclear power plant construction within a 40 mile radius of populated areas like Chicago should be barred, said spokesmen for Citizens for a Better Environment and 21 similar citigroups.

The CBE group is based in Chicago.

Allie Polivka, CBE nuclear power researcher, said a rule-making petition was submitted this week to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to prohibit any new nuclear power plants near major metropolitan areas.

POLIVKA SAID the commission and its predecessor, the Atomic Energy Commission, ignored informal guidelines in population density. The Zion, Dresden and Braidwood plants in Illinois and the planned Bailly plant in nothern Indiana are cited for violations of existing and proposed guidelines.

Under the proposed guidelines, a site would be acceptable for a reactor only if there were no more than 400 people per square mile for 40 miles. Polivka said the standard is based on commission staff studies.

"No one should be required to live under the shadow of a nuclear plant," said Polivka. "But as long as the utilities are permitted to build them, we must insist that they be constructed away from cities so that the lives of the fewest people are endangered The changes we are proposing today only begin to address one of the problems associated with the proliferation of nuclear poer plants.

"Prohibiting plants near cities is only a temporary answer at best. An end to nuclear plants is the only real of nuclear power plants.

Building costs skyrocket

Money pinch curbs new apartments

Apartment construction has become a naughty word in today's money market, according to mortgage banker Stuart L. Greenberg.

"The money market has gone to hell and the cost of construction has gone to the moon," Greenberg said at an apartment seminar sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Greenberg, vice president of Republic Realty Mortgage Corp., said lenders now are more interested in financing the purchase of existing buildings than in the construction of new ones.

"THERE IS NOTHING better than a proven track record," he said. Noting that buildings known to make money are a good investment.

New apartment projects are caught in the vicious circle of spiraling costs, Greenberg said. New projects are so costly that developers are forced to charge unreasonable rents to make ends meet. He said this problem has been plaguing the market for the past two years and shows no sign of easing.

"The problem today isn't occupancy," Greenberg said. "The problem today is cost."

Greenberg said in the past 18 months or so his firm has financed only one new apartment project. That complex is in Wisconsin and was built primarily because the tradesmen working on the project weren't paid union wages.

"IT WAS LIKE STEPPING back into 1966-67," Greenberg said.

When evaluating a project, Greenberg said most of the old rules of thumb no longer apply. He said traditional formulas for figuring profit have gone out the window.

"The old bromides just don't apply any more The lending industry is kind of groping for new bromides and cliches," he said.

The track record of the developer is now the major consideration in evaluating a project, Greenberg said.

"What has become important today is the analysis of who is buying the property," he said, noting this includes a look at other projects developed by the same person or firm.

GREENBERG WARNED that lenders shouldn't be too greedy in seeking high interest rates in today's market.

"You can get whatever you want in interest rates, but you are also probably going to get the building back," Greenberg said. He said lenders should ask reasonable interest rates to give the project a chance of succeeding.

Greenberg said developers who have substantial resources seemed to have made it through the recent financial crunch without major problems. He said this is still important to the success of a project today.

"Costs being what there are, there is just not a lot left over," he said.

JUST THE RIGHT amount of light and no more. That's a problem many of us need to solve. Vladimir Kagan handled the chore with a double set of shades by Joanna. One is transparent Comfort Shades, the other white room-darkeners.

Here's a new way to dim that room filled with glare

Every once in a while it's important to check out what the famous international designers are up to. While designers do not create new lifestyles, they certainly do solve the problems created by our changing patterns of living.

Vladimir Kagan has established a reputation for being a pace-setting designer. He doesn't just "decorate," he analyzes a space and a client's need, then proceeds to evolve creative answers to contemporarily comfortable living.

Kagan had a stickler recently when he embarked on an interior design project for Mrs. Doris Freedman, former director of cultural programs for New York City.

THERE WAS A long, narrow solarium in the Freedman apartment that provided a great view of the city, but not the greatest exposure — especially during days with heavy sky glare. Kagan solved the problem of eye comfort two ways. Tired of using casement curtains and draperies, he specified a double-shade concept. Here's how it works:

He uses transparent fiberglass shades by Joanna. Called Comfort Shades, they insulate against hot sun (and cold air) without cutting out the day or night view. The shades meet the windowsill below and are banded in bright persimmon-colored "pull-bars."

Inside these Comfort Shades the designer used white room-darkening shades that can be moved up and down to adjust the quality of light. These Joanna shades are trimmed with beige nylon velvet and have Brazilian zebrawood pulls.

Unifying the whole scheme and hiding the hardware is more zebrawood, this time a special valance made to Kagan's specifications.

All of the furnishings are custom designs, so readers can't find duplicates. But the ideas are here for the taking. The chunky-looking table is actually a drop-leaf type with white plastic-laminate surfacing. The long seating unit is covered with persimmon plush fabric and is nicely interrupted by Kagan's see-through storage unit.

$9.4 billion contract value

Construction index hits '76 high

April contracts for future construction work lifted the seasonally adjusted Dodge Index of total construction contract value to 189, its highest level so far in 1976. The Dodge Index uses 1967 as its 100 base.

According to the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company, April construction contracts throughout the nation totaled $9,407,884,000. This amount was virtually unchanged from the same month a year ago.

"The similarity of the two April totals conceals some important improvements in construction markets over the past 12 months," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for Dodge. "At this time last year, a lot of the thrust in construction demand was being created by Federal anti-recessionary public works spending. By now, that temporary stimulus has worn off, and has been replaced by self-sustaining demand for housing and the beginning of a recovery in commercial and industrial building."

NONRESIDENTIAL building contracts totaled $2,740,924,000 in April, 2 per cent less than in the year-ago month, said the economist.

"At this time last year, nonresidential building was on the way down — now, it's on the way up," Christie said. "The low point of contracting for commercial, industrial, and institutional buildings was reached last December. Since then, the rate of nonresidential building (seasonally adjusted) has made four successive monthly gains."

April contracts for residential structures totaled $4,003,270,000 and led last year's total by 34 per cent. Although the biggest part of the housisng improvement has been confined to single-family homes, Christie said the apartment market isn't quite as dormant as national totals seem to indicate.

"In the first four months of 1976, multi-family building has been making solid gains in the midwest and in the far west," said Christie. "These advances, however, have been offset by continued weakness all up and down the east coast, where most of the condominium surplus is concentrated."

Contracts for nonbuilding construction, at $2,663,690,000 in April, were down 26 per cent from the unusually high value of such work at this time last year..

Arlington's Mike Mayerick makes it to third safely on a wild pitch in the sixth inning Friday. Rolling Meadows didn't let him score in the Mid-Suburban title game . . .

Rolling Meadows in MSL thriller

Mustangs' 2-1 win brings 2nd straight championship

by JIM COOK

There may have been some dirty faces at the Rolling Meadows prom Friday night, but you couldn't expect the Mustang varsity baseball team to forget their second straight Mid-Suburban League conference championship so quickly.

Achieved only hours before ghe gala prom celebration, Meadows defeated Arlington, 2-1, in the final of the three-game title series.

Following an identical script, Meadows went so far as to duplicate the same score that brought the school its first conference championship in the school's history in 1975.

For 20-4 Arlington, the outcome only prolonged the frustration of entering the baseball winner's circle, an absence that dates back to the 1940's.

Over 400 spectators formed human chalk lines down both base paths to witness the deciding contest and none could have been disappointed with the championship caliber of play.

Arlington, which had countered Meadows' regular-season 6-3 triumph with a 1-0 decision Thursday, pitted lanky sophomore Doug Harth against junior Dennis Drolet in the finale.

The Mustangs struck in the opening inning when leadoff hitter Paul Marsillo reached on an error, Mike Bramlett pushed a hit-and-run single through a vacated hole at shortstop and Drolet lofted a sacrifice fly to deep right field.

After going down in order in the first, Arlington earned the equalizer in the second. Kevin O'Brien drew a leadoff pass, Don Stebbins pushed a perfect sacrifice bunt down the first-base line and Brett Frase lined a single to short center.

The relay from Meadows' Mike Bramlett reached the plate at the same instant as O'Brien and the resulting collision between the steaming O'Brien and Mustang catcher Jim Broderick jarred the ball out of the catcher's mitt.

Rolling Meadows fought back into the lead in the fourth when outfield hero John Igrasek beat out a shot back to the mound that grazed Harth.

When Dave Bell drew an ensuing walk with still nobody out, Harth was relieved by Craig Kennedy who failed to find the handle on a sacrifice bunt by Noe Nunez and all hands were safe.

Kennedy recovered to fan Broderick, but while Paul Marsillo was hitting into a fielder's choice at third, Igrasek cross with what proved to be winning run of the game.

Arlington threatened with two men on in the fourth and Meadows came up empty-handed in the sixth, despite loading the bases with only one out on Igrasek's second hit and two walks.

But Cardinal coach Fran Somers went to his "no tomorrow" ace John Mertins, Thursday's clutch winner, who continued to manufacture mound magic by enticing Marsillo to rap into an inning-ending doubleplay.

Arlington put a struggling Drolet back on the ropes in the sixth when Mike Mayerck coaxed the fourth of five walks and O'Brien bunted him into scoring position.

Mayerck advanced to third on a wild pitch, but Marsillo made one of several of the game's defensive gems by going deep into the hole at short with the infield pulled in to throw out Don Stebbins as Mayerck held.

Brett Frase kept the threat alive when he was plunked in the mid-section by a Drolet fastball and Bruce Aronson walked to jam the bases.

Dan Frase labeled a drive tagged "extra-base blast" up the left-center power alley, but Igrasek remarkably caught up with the ball for an over-the-shoulder sparkler that killed the inning.

"I guess this one was sweetning coach Al Otto reflected. "Let me tell you, it's tough beating them over here, especially when our kids could very easily have been looking past the game to the prom."

. . . And the Mustangs went on to win the high school thriller, 2-1. The happy Meadows players whoop it up.

Igrasek is star of game

by DON FRISKE

As Rolling Meadows' John Igrasek saw it, things turned out a little sweeter than he figured they would.

This isn't to say that Igrasek, the Mustangs' pitcher turned left fielder, was doubtful that his team would win the Mid-Suburban League championship.

It's just that certain circumstances made Friday's 2-1 victory over Arlington much more pleasing for the Mustang senior.

Igrasek pitched Thursday in the best-of-three-game series, giving up only five hits and no walks. But he lost the game 1-0 which pushed the series into its final game.

His loss on Thursday gave Igrasek the opportunity to become the hero on Friday.

He accepted the offer.

He responded with two hits, the latter of which led the winning run, and two spectacular catches in left field, one with the bases loaded and two outs.

"It's a little sweeter coming back after losing yesterday and helping to win today," Igrasek said after the game. "It would have been nice to win yesterday, but it's more fun this way."

Brother Rice, Rich S. take titles

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago Brother Rice scored a run in the top of the seventh inning Friday night to beat Libertyville, 5-4, and capture the Illinois state boys' high school baseball championship crown. Rich South won the girls' softball title earlier in the day.

Second baseman Mike Ladevich singled home pinch-runner Bill Brannigan from second for the clincher after the Crusaders had lost a 4-0 lead after three innings as Libertyville scored twice in both the fifth and sixth innings.

Brother Rice scored two runs in the first on two hits. Centerfielder Jim Adduci drove in one with a single and he then scored the second run on a wild pitch. In the third, the Crusaders scored twice when Adduci doubled home Ladevich and Ron Schwartz singled home Adduci.

Libertyville got two runs in the fifth on an RBI single by Pete Banting and a sacrifice fly by catcher Tom Michel. The Wildcats added a pair in the sixth on three hits, including a run-scoring double by Bob Erickson.

In the semifinals played earlier Friday, Brother Rice came from behind to defeat Aurora West, 3-2, and Libertyville beat O'Fallon.

PEKIN, Ill. (UPI) — Rich South's Bonnie Kraemer pitched a five-hitter and her teammates scored three runs on five hits to shutout Tremont 3-0 and win the Illinois state high school girls softball championship.

All the scoring took place in the top half of the sixth inning. Diane Malito singled to centerfield and stole second. Marcy Jung reached first on an error by losing Tremont pitcher Margie Eckhoff, now 7-1, and Malito advanced to third. Katy Dean singled to left field, scoring both Malito and Jung.

Dean then stole second, followed by Linda Ladwein's single to center field which brought Dean home and gave the Mustangs their third run.

Tremont's biggest threat came in the fourth inning when Joan Hillman and Susan Lonergan each singled with none out. But a doubleplay ended their hopes.

In the semifinal games played earlier in the day, Rich South eliminated Rockford Harlem, 6-0, and Tremont stopped Downers Grove South, 2-1.

Hasbach's gems 6 years apart

by ART MUGALIAN

Six years between no-hitters is a long time for anybody, and for Dave Hasbach the wait has been especially long.

Hasbach, a 1970 graduate of Palatine High School, tossed a seven-inning hitless gem Wednesday for Omaha of the Triple-A American Association. The 4-0 victory over Tulsa gave Hasbach's team a sweep of the twi-night doubleheader and a slim lead in the Eastern Division standings.

Hasbach's last no-hitter was a perfect game in American Legion competition when the tall righthander was pitching for Palatine Post 690 in 1970.

"I think this one was probably a little more thrilling," said Hasbach, after arriving in Oklahoma City via Tulsa. "It's the only other no-hitter I think I've ever thrown."

The 6-foot-3 Hasbach, who was a three-sport star during his prep days at Palatine, has endured a lot between no-hitters. Three years ago, before his senior year at the University of Miami, he underwent an operation on the elbow of his pitching arm. For awhile, his career was in serious doubt.

"The arm is okay now," said Hasbach. "It's working really well. I threw mostly fastballs Wednesday night."

Hasbach got the victory at the expense of former Chicago White Sox hurler Lloyd Allen. It was Dave's fifth win against two losses this season.

Second baseman Steve Staggs made two excellent plays to preserve the no-hitter, including a diving stop of a hard grounder in the final inning. And center fielder Ruppert Jones snared a long flyball with his back to the infield, crashing into the wall in the fifth.

"I had a lot of help," Hasbach noted.

Hasbach is in his second season with Omaha, although he spent most of 1975 at Jacksonville of the Southern League, where he posted a 9-10 record with a 3.13 ERA in 164 innings.

The Kansas City Royals signed Dave right out of college even though his arm was a large question mark at the time. Hasbach missed his entire senior year because of the elbow surgery.

"It's hard to tell what their plans are for me," said Hasbach, who is as high up in the organization as he can be without getting the major-league call.

"This is really only my second year in the minors and Kansas City has a good pitching staff, although lately it hasn't been as good as they would like," Dave said. "There's nothing I can do about it except try to pitch as well as I can."

Hasbach will probably go to the mound next on Monday night against Western Division-leading Oklahoma City, the best team in the league.

"I've never beaten them," said Dave, who will go out there because he knows there's always a first time.

And he'll try to cut the elapsed time between no-hitters, too.

Celts need three OTs to topple Phoenix

Reserve Glenn McDonald, playing because three teammates had fouled out, scored six points in the third overtime Friday night to boost the Celtics to a nerve-wracking 128-126 victory over the Phoenix Suns and give Boston a 3-2 lead in the NBA championship series.

The Celtics, who blew a 22-point second quarter lead, were mobbed by hundreds of fans on the Boston Garden court as the game ended. Boston can wrap up its 13th league title with a win Sunday afternoon in the sixth game at Phoenix.

Jo Jo White was Boston's leader at the end, scoring six of his game high 33 points in the third overtime period. But it was White's pretty feed to McDonald, with the score tied 118-118 and two minutes to play, that put Boston ahead permanently.

The game was the wildest playoff contest seen at Boston Garden since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar hit a "sky hook" in the second overtime of the 1974 Boston-Milwaukee series to give the Bucks a victory in the sixth game of that championship.

A 20-foot jump shot by the Suns Gar Heard at the buzzer moved the game into the third overtime with the score tied 112-112.

For the umpteenth time, the Celtics had apparently won the game when John Havlicek sank an 18-foot bank shot with one second left and White added a free throw on a technical against Phoenix for calling a time out it did not have. But the in-bounds pass came to Heard at the top of the key and he swished the shot as the horn sounded.

Kingman rips 3 homers, 8 RBI!

Dave Kingman snapped out of a 1-for-18 slump with three home runs and drove in a club record eight runs Friday night to spark the New York Mets to a 11-0 rout of the Los Angeles Dodgers. The 6-foot-6 Kingman, boosting his major league home run lead to 20, increased his season's RBI total to 46 and erased the Met single-game RBI mark of seven set July 28, 1970, by Donn Clendenon against the San Francisco Giants.

MacPhail nixes protest, raps Texas

American League Prsident Lee MacPhail turned down a protest by the Chicago White Sox Friday, but criticized the Texas Rangers for using a pitcher they already had traded.

White Sox owner Bill Beeck protested his team's 6-5, 16-inning loss to Texas June 1 because the Rangers started pitcher Bill Singer. While the game still was in progress — but after Singer had been removed — an announcement was made that Singer was involved in a six-man trade to Minnesota.

"The manner in which this transaction was handled by the Texas club could properly be questioned," MacPhail said in a statement. "Although on occasion it may be necessary to play a player after a trade has been agreed upon but before it takes effect, such a practice should be avoided whenever possible.

"This is especially true of a starting pitcher. There is the danger of injury and there is also the danger of premature publicity and knowledge by the player that he is playing for a team of which, in a few hours, he will no longer be a member. Potentially this could create a problem involving the integrity of the game."

MacPhail said that the actions of the Rangers are being reviewed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He added that he was denying the protest since it could be established that the Rangers and Twins had agreed to make their trade agreement effective after the games of June 1.

Messersmith just misses no-hitter

Andy Messersmith allowed only one hit Friday night — a one-out ninth inning single by Pepe Mangual — and pitched the Atlanta Braves to a 2-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The curly-haired right-hander, who lost his first four decisions with the Braves this year after signing with them for more than $1 million as a free agent, had his no-hit bid spoiled when Mangual grounded a single between short and third into left field with one out in the ninth.

Messersmith then settled down and struck out the last two batters to preserve his third win against five losses. He finished with seven strikeouts while walking just one.

Purtzer leads Bicentennial Golf

Admitting he got a "little tight" because he had never led a major tournament before, rookie pro Tom Purtzer shot an even par 71 Friday for a 36-hole total of 136, 6-under-par, and a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the Bicentennial Golf Classic.

The 24-year-old Purtzer, who has never won a tournament in a little less than a year on the pro tour, had a two-stroke lead at the start of second round play at Philadelphia's Whitemarsh Valley Country Club as the result of an opening day 65.

Purtzer led by a stroke over Jerry Pate, Jerry McGee and Chi Chi Rodiguez. Both Pate and McGee shot 67s after opening round 70s while Rodriguez had a 68 to go with his earlier 69.

Back at 138 was Masters champion Ray Floyd and Lyn Lott while those at 139 included Tery Biehl, Mike McCullough and Frank Beard. At 140 were Mike Hill, Gary McCord and Fuzzy Zoeller. The field of 153 pros was cut at 146 to 72 players for the remaining 36 holes. Those failing to make the cut included Larry Wadkins, who had 148, and defending champion Tom Jenkins, who had a 151.

Gossage, Indian errors combine for 4-1 Sox win

The White Sox, behind the "horsebleep" pitching of Rich Gossage and the same sort of defense on the part of the visiting Cleveland Indians, took a 4-1 win home Friday night before "team night" crowd of 25,883 at Comiskey Park.

"I was horsebleep," Gossage said after the game, his third straight win. "I had it now and then, but I didn't have it all the time. But I made some good pitches when I had to."

Though his usual strikeout pitch wasn't working, Gossage concentrated on "keeping the ball low." He was apparently effective, getting 15 outs on ground balls Indian batters were beating into the dirt. Three others went down by striking out.

The win was the 14th in the last 18 games for the surging Sox.

The Sox scored a pair of runs in the first inning in a rally keyed by a Cleveland throwing error.

Pat Kelly led off by drawing a walk and then stole second. Nyls Nyman then lined a shot to the shortstop that nearly doubled Kelly off second.

Ralph Garr rapped a single to short center, Kelly holding at third, but Garr attempted to take second on the throw-in to the infield.

Cleveland catcher Alan Ashby threw to second, but the ball went through to centerfield, scoring Kelly and sending Garr to third.

Jorge Orta followed by rapping the first pitch off Cleveland starting pitcher Dennis Eckersley for a double to right to score Garr. Eckersley then fanned Jim Spencer and Bucky Dent to get out of the inning down 2-0.

The Tribe's only run came in the fifth when Frank Duffy doubled with one out, then came home on successive infield hits by Duane Kuiper and Buddy Bell.

The Sox added a pair of insurance runs in the fifth courtesy of another Cleveland error and some speed on the basepaths.

Kelly opened with a single and went to second with his second stolen base of the night. Nyman struck out but Garr stroked an RBI single and ended up on third on a two-base error by Cleveland firstbaseman Boog Powell.

Garr scored as Orta legged out a triple to left that made it 4-1. That brought on left hander Rick Waits who got the next two outs to end the inning by pitching to only one man.

Waits got Spencer to bounce into a fielder's choice as Orta was cut down trying to score by a throw from third baseman Bell. Spencer was then caught trying to steal second for the third out.

Garr pulled a groin muscle flying down to first to leg out a hit, his third in four trips, in the seventh inning. Garr stayed in the game to run but then came out. "I don't know how bad it'll be," Garr said, icing down his right thigh after the game. "I've played hurt before, though."

SOX NOTES: Rich Wortham, a 6-5 lefty and the winningest pitcher in NCAA history, signed a contract Friday with Knoxville farm club of the Chicago White Sox . . . During his four years at Texas University, Wertham won 50 while losing only seven . . . The Sox have promoted pitcher Chris Knapp from Knoxville to Iowa, their AAA farmclub . . . Knapp was leading the Southern League in victories with seven against three losses.

Lefty Terry Forster (1-2) is scheduled to pitch for the Sox today against Pat Dobson (5-5) for the Indians . . . Wilbur Wood, who suffered a broken left kneecap at Detroit when struck by a line drive off the bat of Ron LeFlore May , has been examined by White Sox doctors who have labeled Wood's progress as "encouraging" . . . Wood returned to his Boston home Thursday but will be back in a few weeks for further examinations.

Northwest Rebels plan twinbill season opener

TheNorthwest Rebels, a top-notch semi-pro baseball team which won the Greater Illinois Baseball League playoffs last season and finished with a 21-7 record, will open their fifth season today with a doubleheader at Harper College.

Providing the opposition for the Rebels in the two games, beginning at noon, will be the Romeoville Sports.

The Rebels, who will be sponsored for the second consecutive year by Jake's Pub, lost a few of the players from last year's squad but still have a formidable array of talent returning.

Heading up the pitching staff will be Willie Kozel, a productive lefty who was 8-1 last year and completed 10 of his 11 starts.

The Rebels top righthander will be Jim Bokelman, a graduate of Arlington High School and an outstanding pitcher at Southern Illinois University.

Keith Pecka, who just finished his senior season at Wheeling High School, is also being counted on.

Ray Gross, the general manager and an assistant coach, will see some mound time as will manager Rick Marino.

The Rebels compiled a .303 team batting average last year and much of that hitting muscle returns.

Dean Sheridan will hold down third base. His .386 batting average and a league best 23 BTIs will be a big portion of the Northwest attack.

Scott Day will also return to anchor the outfield from his center field position. Day hit .333 last year and was second in the league in RBIs with 17.

The other outfield spots will be covered by Bruce Hanson, a .266 hitter at Illinois State, and Mike Groot, a .302 hitter with the Rebels last year.

Joining Sheridan in the infield will be shortstop John Theriault, a transfer from the Midlothian semi-pro team, Prospect High School grad Mike Quade at second and Ron DeBolt at first.

DeBolt, the head baseball coach at Wheeling, made his debut with the Rebs last year a successful one as he hit .362.

Paul Groot and Bruce Eberle will share the catching duties.

Igrasek leads Mustangs to crown inning proved to be more of a game winner than the run he scored. The Cardinals had loaded the bases with two walks and a hit batter, starting pitcher Dennis Drolet was losing his curve ball, and Mustang Coach Al Otto was pondering a pitching change.

Dan Frase hit a line drive to left and Igrasek started running.

"I just ran as fast as I could and caught it. I guess I was lucky," he said.

The catch allowed Drolet to pick up a complete-game win as he found the range with his curve again in the seventh.

"I didn't think I had it in me. I was losing my curve and that's my money pitch," Drolet said. "The coach told me to 'be tough and relax and you'll get them out.' But he didn't mention taking me out at all."

Otto showed confidence in his pitcher and the gamble worked.

"I was going to go with him, but who knows?" Otto said. "Another walk or hit and he might have been gone."

The move by Otto might have been part of a glimpse into the future as a confidence builder for Drolet, a junior.

Next year Otto sees Drolet as the nucleus to rebuild his team while going after his third consecutive conference championship. The seniors he's losing this spring have become accustomed to conference titles.

As freshmen, they took first place in the conference and as sophomores they did the same. Now, with two straight years as winners of the varsity title, it is time to move on.

As for Arlington Coach Fran Somers, he's still trying to figure out what it takes to win a conference championship. The Cardinals' haven't won a baseball title since sometime in the 1940s and they've come as close as can be expected the past two years.

Both times the Mustangs nipped them with 2-1 wins.

"Who knows what it would take to win a championship. I couldn't tell you," Somers said with a shrug.

Nostalgia Expo open to public

The Fourth Annual Baseball Nostalgia Expo will be held this weekend at the Sheraton-North Shore Motor Inn in Northbrook.

The convention will attract dealers and collectors from around the country to buy, sell and trade thousands of sports cards. autographs, publications, uniforms, and many other types of sports memorabilia.

Baseball Nostalgia Expo is open to the public today from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Daily admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12, and a family plan of $2.

Special exhibits will include a rare display of pre-1900 baseball cards, a collection of Ernie Banks memorabilia, and special items displayed by the Chicago White Sox, Cubs, and Sting.

In addition to providing an opportunity to pick up that special card or other item, the Expo would like to encourage all non-collectors to clean out their attics and basements. A panel of Association members will be available to provide advice on the approximate value of such collectibles to assure that they will receive a fair price. Immediate auctions will be conducted to sell the more common items while more valuable walk-in lots will be placed in the Expo's main auctions which will be held at 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The Expo is sponsored by the Chicagoland Collectors Association, a non-profit organization which has grown to 200 active members in less than a year.

While it is often said that only kids collect cards, 30 per cent of the members are students. However, the average age is 28, including executives, attorneys, accountants, and airline pilots.

Last year's Expo attracted a crowd of more than 1,200 collectors.

Astros top Cubs, 1-0

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mike Cosgrove hurled a six-hitter and notched the first shutout of his major league career Friday night in outdueling Rick Reuschel, who gave up just two hits, and pitching the Houston Astros to a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

It was only the second complete game of Cosgrove's career and raised his record to 2-3.

Reuschel, 5-4, was virtually unhittable but committed an error that led the way to Houston's run. Jose Cruz led off the Houston second with an infield single and continued around to third when Reuschel's errant throw went into right field. One out later, he scored on Enos Cabell's grounder to short.

Reuschel retired 17 straight Astros following Cruz's hit before walking Cruz and Cliff Johnson with two outs in the seventh. The only other hit off Reuschel was a first inning single by Cesar Cedeno.

Bold Forbes is Belmont favorite

NEW YORK — There will be no mangos, no cigars and no champagne for Bold Forbes today, at least until after the Belmont Stakes.

E. Rodriguez Tizol's Kentucky Derby winner will be challenged in the 1½ mile Belmont by nine other 3-year-olds as the field was diminished by one Friday mornng when Greentree Stable's Charleston pulled up lame and was scratched.

Elmendorf's Play The Red, who finished second behind Elocutionist in the Preakness, and Howard Wilson's Great Contractor are considered Bold Forbes' chief rivals. Bold Forbes was the 7-5 favorite in the early line, with Play The Red 3-1 and Great Contractor 6-1.

The rest of the field consists of Orme Wilson's Aeronaut, Mrs. Douglas Carver's McKenzie Bridge, Darby Dan Farm's Mullineaux, Mrs. Philip Hofmann's supplemental entry Close to Noon, Ogden Phipps' Majestic Delight, Christiana Stable's Best Laid Plans and John M. Schiff's Quick Card.

The unanimous opinion around Belmont Park, including opposing trainers and jockeys, is Bold Forbes will win the 108th running of the Belmont Stakes if he has the stamina to run a good 1½ miles. But that's a gigantic if.

"Unless he (Bold Forbes) relaxes the first part of the race, he'll never go that far," said Bold Forbes' jockey Angel Cordero, who was unable to get the horse to relax in the lead in the Preakness and the result was an exhausted colt in the stretch and a third place finish.

According to Cordero, the reason Bold Forbes was so tense in the Preakness was the large congregation of Puerto Rican well-wishers in the paddock area when he was being saddled.

"There were people petting him and one man even tried to get him to eat a mango before the race," Cordero said.

trainer Las Barrera plans to rectify the situation for the Belmont, which will be worth $195,000 with the winner's purse at $117,000 if all 10 starters make the 4:30 p.m. post.

"Mr. Barrera is going to saddle him all by himself with only me and the foreman there," Cordero said. "There will be no people hitting him with programs, no mangos to eat, no one wanting the horse to smoke a cigar and no one there with champgne wanting him to drink champagne, too.

"It doesn't matter how fast he goes as long as he gets to relax. One thing that might save him is the competition is not too strong."

The surprisingly large field has assembled chiefly because the second place money of $42,900 is so attractive, particularly with Bold Forbes the only standout in the race.

Play The Red, ridden by Jean Cruguet, has won $85,625, but still is looking for his first stakes victory.

Great Contractor, who will be ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, has won $100,319, second only to Bold Forbes' total of $381,639. Great Contractor is the only Belmont starter to have run 1½ miles twice on the turf, when he finished seventh and sixth, respectively, in the Pan American Handicap and the turf Cup Handicap.

Frank wins 2nd golf writer title

Chuck Frank won his second straight Chicago Chapter of the Golf Writers Assn. invitational tournament at Old Orchard Country Club Friday.

Frank, the Suburban Trib's golf writer, fired a seven-over-par 77 over the tight and testing Mount Prospect club course that measures 6,335 yards. He shot nines of 40 and 37, having two deuces on the backside par 3s.

Capturing longest drive honors on pro-manager Lou Sabo's lush layout was Paul Logan with a wind-aided 261-yard blast on the ninth hole. Logan is the Herald's golf writer.

Len Ziehm, who writes for the Sun-Times, took the closest to the pin honors when his teeshot at the par 3 third hole finished 11 feet from the cup.

No other scores were available. When former Chicago Today writer and tourney founder Tommy Kouzmanoff asked for them, the frustrated writer-golfers said in unison: "No comment!"

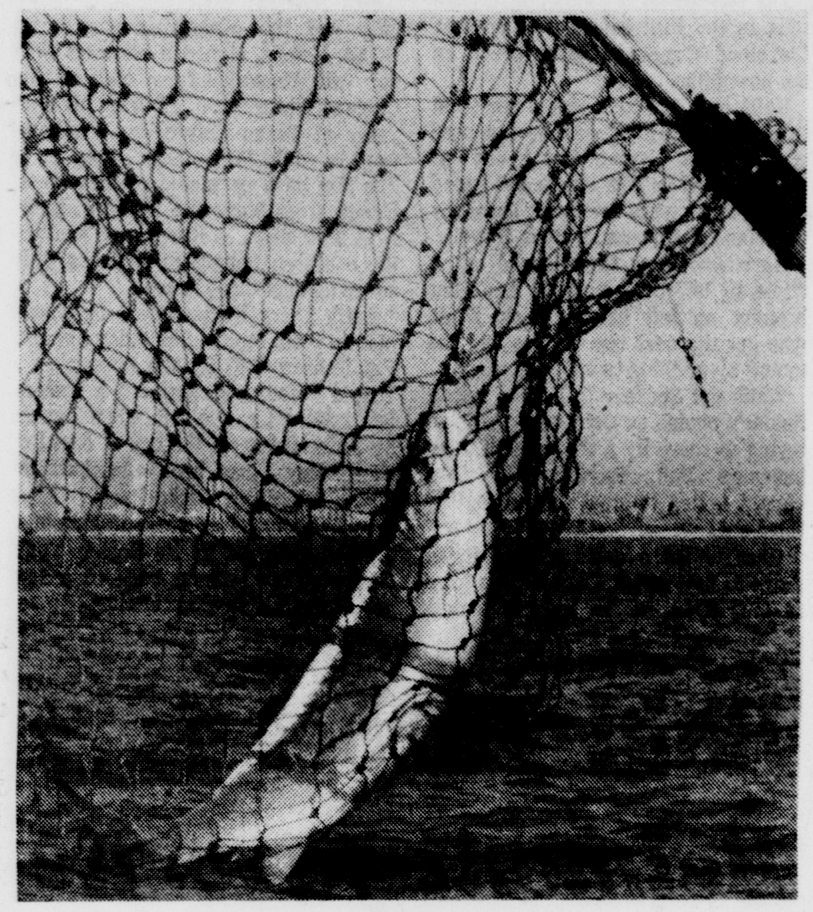
Impossible dream

Catching a limit of Lake Michigan salmon



NET MINDER. Trapped in the mesh of the landing net, a silvery coho salmon is hoisted from the waters of Lake Michigan against a backdrop of skyscrapers in Chicago's Burnham Harbor.

It's the limit . . . in more ways than one.

Lake Michigan, for many years a convenient sewer for Chicago industry, is now a giant business, comparable in stature with Sears Tower, Big John and Standard Oil.

The reflection of the magnificent Chicago skyline was never as distinct or refreshing than from our vantage point one mile out of Burnham Harbor in Lake Michigan.

But the skyline was only a backdrop for what was to spiral into the ultimate fishing experience any outdoor sportsman could imagine.

It was the impossible dream — a dream preceded by one of the most horrible nightmares a body of water the size of Lake Michigan has ever known.

Infested with parasitic sea lampreys that single-handedly destroyed a subsaantial lake trout population, the big pond was then beseiged by the prolific alewife which transformed sandy beaches into repulsive-smelling graves for dead fish.

But the horror show ended with the introduction of salmon — silvery coho and battling chinook — that extinguished the alewife onslaught with their voracious appetites.

While miraculously eliminating the pesky alewives, the salmon grew profoundly, in numbers because of successful stocking programs spearheaded by such organizations as Salmon Unlimited and in tackle-breaking size as they migrated along the Chicago shoreline.

Hook and line fishermen immediately discovered the rewards of fishing for and catching salmon. Harbors became cities for charger fishing boats and breakwater anglers.

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

In a deep-sea atmosphere, our hosts for Thursday's outing, Captain Gary Zilian and his wife and first mate Diane, piloted the Lamprey Charter Boat through the blue-green Lake Michigan waters and into the shadow of Chicago's skyscrapers.

Salmon, in making their summer-long journey from the lower tip of Lake Michigan in Indiana, had begun making frequent appearances 1-4 miles offshore.

"We should hit them pretty good today," Gary inflated our hopes as he mounted artificial baits to the fishing lines.

With the boat bobbing in 4-6 foot rollers, he continued, "The northeast wind has been a problem all summer, muddying the shorelines and keeping a lot of boats off the lake, but it isn't too bad today."

Zilian's optimistic forecast was not unfounded as two plump, four-pound cohos covered the bottom of the cooler within the first half hour.

"Green has been a very popular color this month," Zilian said while baiting our lines with original Val flies, a Marty King fly and green, black and gold Luhr Jensen Twinkle Flies and flutter spoons.

The water was still relatively cold at 46 degrees and the fish, losing a battle to our trolling lures, were beautifully colored and healthy in appearance.

In boating four leaping, tailwalking cohos in the first hour, we had enjoyed a full day's excitement, but the rod tips kept bending, the reels kept screaming and the cooler kept getting heavier as the sun peaked overhead.

A couple of beefy six-pound coho pounded the inside of the cooler between noon and 1 p.m., destroying the myth that most fish are caught in early-morning, late-evening action.

But they were only a prelude to the suspense that unfolded precisely at two o'clock. One of the poles, with just 15-pound test line, bolted from the holder, almost snapping in two from the explosion 50 yards away.

Bill Cook ripped the pole from its mount and clamped down on the star-reel drag to thwart the darting fish's escape tactics.

"Not too much," Zilian coached from the flying bridge above. "He's staying deep, so it might be a bit chinook."

Despite his constant cranking on the reel handle, Bill failed to gain line on the determined fish. After a 20-minute standoff, the lunker salmon came up slowly, making a final dash for freedom upon seeing the 34-foot boat.

"It's a coho!" Zilian said in disbelief while counting the distinguishing number of rays on the dorsal fin, examining the color of the fish's mouth and identifying the arrow-shaped spots on the 12-pounder's back.

"Last week this fish would have won a new bass boat in the derby that was held during May," Gary said. "It's a beautiful fish."

Quiting time came prematurely. We had reached our legal limit of 30 coho salmon by 4:30 and roared back toward bustling Chicago.

Businessmen were scurrying for buses and trains. Traffic on Lake Shore Drive was slowing to a crawl. And less than a block away, we were cleaning over 100 pounds of fresh salmon.

Impossible.

Caution with campfires

A campfire, when properly managed, can offer warmth and good cheer.

But an unattended campfire, especially during dry weather, can turn a forest into a flaming hell that burns trees, animals, campsites and, in some instances, humans unable to escape.

There are many ideas about building a safe campfire. Len Hilts, author of Rand McNally's "National Forest Guide," offers this procedure:

"The first step is to select a level spot, well away from trees, bushes, dry grass or downed and rotten logs. If the campsite has no fire facilities, clean out a 10-foot circle down to bare dirt, removing anything that will burn.

"Now hollow out a fire hole a foot and a half across and six inches to a foot deep. Find some good-sized rocks and place them around the rim of the hole. Build a small fire in the hole, using dry twigs for kindling. Use larger branches or small logs for the main fuel. Do not cut living trees for firewood, but search the area for deadwood. Keep extra firewood you gather outside of the cleared area and to the windward of the fire. Keep your shovel, ax and a bucket of water handy to control the fire in the event it spreads.

Have perch disappeared?

A baffling, near-absence of yellow perch during a recent Lake Michigan fish census has prompted further study of the popular panfish.

Only six perch were caught during an April census, reports Illinois Department of Conservation fishery biologist Harry Wight.

Over-fishing by commercial fishermen or interference with breeding patterns by alewives may be reasons for the shortage of perch, Wight speculated.

A supplemental perch survey of the Illinois coast was started June 1 by Wight to try to find out why so few perch have been found.

The perch are important both as a commercial cacth and for sports fishermen. In past years, the commercial catch in Illinois waters was as much as 500,000 pounds. This fact, coupled with reports of an abundant run of perch on the east side of Lake Michigan, add to the puzzle. A previous census last fall also netted few perch.

Rough weather has hampered commercial fishing efforts this spring, and unusual turbulence of inshore waters may have skewed the results of his survey.

If the survey shows that most of the perch are very young, Wight said it might be an indication of over-fishing by commercial fishermen. If most of the fish are larger adults, it might indicate that reproduction of the fish has been hampered.

The perch survey will be conducted at two locations, at depths ranging from four to 10 fathoms. Small-mesh gill nets will be used.

After the survey, Wight said he will do exploratory trawling to locate young perch runs north of the Waukegan harbor.

Fish that are caught will be sexed, measured for length and weight, and tested for toxic substances, as have other fish taken in the fish census.

Although no precedent for the perch survey exists for Illinois waters, Wight said he would be able to make statistical comparisons with test results from other states and with limited data obtained by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

A major reason for the census is to obtain data on fish taken by commercial fishermen to be able to more rationally determine limits for the commercial catch.

YOUNG GIRL seems lost in a sea of bikes on the campus of Michigan State University, as she searches for her bicycle among the hundreds parked near the classrooms.

N. Viets hint they're keeping POWs: yanks

PARIS (UPI) — Three Americans visited the North Vietnamese embassy Friday and said they were given the strong impression that Hanoi still holds some U.S. prisoners of war.

The North Vietnamese used the occasion of the visit to reaffirm that they will disclose no details about Americans missing in nearly two decades of Indochina warfare until Washington resumes discussions on helping repair war damages.

The stillborn Vietnam ceasefire agreement of January, 1973, provided both for tracing missing Americans and for American help in rebuilding war-torn Vietnam. But the cease-fire collapsed within a few months and so did the agreement.

Nelson Amsdill, commander of VFW Post 6691 of Fraser, Mich., headed the three-man delegation that spent an hour and 40 minutes with Do Thanh, first secretary of the North Vietnamese embassy.

"They didn't say anything about living prisoners but they did talk about returning MIA's (missing in action) and POW's," Amsdill told reporters afterward.

"I know definitely on talking to them there are some American prisoners still alive in Indochina, and I definitely believe they have the information on the missing," Amsdill said.

"He (Do Thanh) asked me to make a gesture, to work to get the United States back to the bargaining table," Amsdill said.

Amsdill said the North Vietnamese "told me that once our government makes a gesture, their next gesture will be Capt. Robert Tucci. And once negotiations are completed, they will return all our MIA's and POWs'."

The other two Americans who visited the embassy are Lawrence P. Zatkoff, a Roseville, Michigan, attorney, and Leon Turrou, commander of the Paris VFW post.

The three did not bring to the meeting their foot-high stack of petitions bearing 80,000 signatures plus a separate petition signed by "Gerald Ford," as a private citizen. The Vietnamese said that if the petitions were brought, there would be no meeting.

"My thought is that we should mail the petitions to Hanoi," Amsdill said rather wistfully.

The U.S. embassy did not arrange the meeting and had no comment on it. It said Amsdill and his colleagues had conferred, at their own request, with U.S. embassy officers before calling on the Vietnamese.

The petition signed by Ford made a "demand that a full accounting be made for all Americans still missing in Southeast Asia." It appended a list of all 2,550 of them.

Native plants class offered at Harper

"Native Plants," a course offered by the Lifelong Learning Division of Harper College, will introduce participants to the variety of plants, including orchids and ferns, which grow naturally in the area.

Robert Hecht, a member of the American Rock Garden Society, will instruct.

Included in the course will be tours of plant communities and exercises in plant identification.

The course will be held on Saturday mornings from June 12 through July 21. Tuition is $16. For information, call 397-3000, ext. 410, 412.

You've got to scrub, soak: makers of dishwashers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four dishwasher manufacturers and a detergent maker insisted Friday that advertising claims for the cleaning power of their products were not meant to cover unscrubbed utensils smeared with burned food or long-time leftovers.

The companies, in reports the Federal Trade Commission ordered last July, said the commission read too much into their ads.

The commission raised the question of how the products could "remove every visible particle of every type of cooked-on food from any pot or pan" without prior scrubbing and without regard to vessel's surface, how long food was cooked, whether it had been burned or how long it was left over.

All the companies responded that they never intended to imply that pots and pans layered with food that was scorched, or dried out by long storage, could be cleaned without a prior scrubbing, scraping or soaking.

Reports were submitted by General Electric for its "Pot-scrubber" dishwasher; Whirlpool Corp., for its "Super Scour" product; Sears for its "Lady Kenmore"; Hobard Corp., maker of "Soak Cycle" KitchenAid washers, and Economics Laboratory of St. Paul, Minn., maker of "Electrasol" detergent for dishwashers.

Find Liz Ray had at least 1 high school typing class

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Elizabeth Ray may have not been the most proficient secretary on the staff of Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, but she apparently had at least one course in typing at Marshall High School.

Miss Ray, 33, received nationwide attention last month with accusations that she was put on the federal payroll to serve as Hays' mistress. She said she was paid $14,000 annually even though she couldn't type.

Donald Payne, a former typing teacher at the small high school in the western North Carolina town of Marshall where Miss Ray was raised, said he remembers Miss Ray, known then as Betty Lou.

"I remember the girl but I really don't remember that much about her," he said in a telephone interview from his Spartanburg, S.C., office. "I taught typing, bookkeeping and shorthand. I feel sure she was probably in my class."

But he said he could not say for sure if he taught her typing or another course.

The school annual for 1962, the year in which Miss Ray was one of 39 graduates, indicates she was a member of the Business Education Club and Payne said one requirement for membership in the club was completion of two years of typing instruction.

"By her being in the Business Education Club," Payne said, "I think it would be safe to assume that she had typing."

"She would have been capable of typing," he said. "But it's quite possible she never achieved any degree of proficiency in it."

"I taught all typing except one class and there was another fellow who taught it," he said. "If she had two years of typing she was definitely in my class because I was the only person who taught second-year typing."

Second-year students had to be able to type about 50 words a minute to pass the course, he said.

School officials said her records were "locked up" because of numerous inquiries within recent weeks. An official said information in her file would be released only with Miss Ray's written permission.

In another development, publishing sources in Washington said Friday Elizabeth Ray taped some "ordinary reminiscences" for use in her forthcoming Washington hijinks book, but never submitted any recordings of her bedroom escapades.

"There was never any dynamite information on those tapes," said one source familiar with the Ray manuscripts. "They were very ordinary reminiscences, notes on her life.

"There was nothing sensational in them you haven't already read in the newspapers."

Bill goes to Senate

House OKs $1.9 billion aid bill

The Illinois House Friday passed and sent to the Senate a welfare budget of nearly $2 billion for the coming fiscal year.

The vote was 96-37. There was little debate.

Although 22 amendments were considered, the bill (H3475) cleared the House in virtually the same form and amount as that requested by the Dept. of Public Aid.

The total of $1,985,763 makes the welfare bill the largest in this year's budget.

In other action Friday:

• The Senate passed and returned to the House a measure that would permit political parties to use nominating committees rather than primaries to fill ballot positions for county offices under certain special circumstances.

The measure would apply when a county office not scheduled to be up for election is vacated after the filing date for the primary. Under present law, the county would have to conduct a special primary to nominate candidates for that office.

• The Illinois House Friday failed for a second time to pass a bill that would increase state school funding for the current year by $67.5 million. The bill failed on a roll call of 71-54. Eighty-nine votes are needed for passage.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Arthur Berman, D-Chicago, said he will not try again to obtain more school aid for this year.

Illinois briefs

Crisis at hospital ends

The money squeeze at Cook County Hospital has been averted at least temporarily by a state agreement to pay the hospital $9 million in overdue Medicaid patient bills, an aide to Dr. James G. Haughton, hospital governing commission director, said Friday.

The agreement, reached in Springfield Thursday between Haughton and James Trainor, state public aid director, should enable the hospital to meet its next two payrolls.

Officials of the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission, which runs Cook County and Oak Forest and Cermak Memorial hospitals, said Wednesday they could not meet the next $4 million payroll because of cash shortage blamed on the slow payment of bills by the state Dept. of Public Aid.

Subpoenaes in vote probe

Federal grand jury subpoenas were served Friday on members of the Chicago Board of Election commissioners in an investigation of vote fraud allegations in the March 16 primary election.

The grand jury is probing charges that election workers forged ballot applications after they voted in place of persons who did not cast votes.

The subpoenas requested records from various Chicago precincts including those on the far North Side, in the River wards and in the 1st Congressional District where U.S. Rep. Ralph H. Metcalfe won a hotly contested race against Erwin A. France, the regular Democratic Party candidate.

'State parks threatened'

State Conservation Director Tony Dean said Friday cuts in proposed and current long-term projects for the department totaling $12 million could force the closing of some facilities in state parks and historic sites.

The $12 million cut in bonding money, Dean told a news conference, "will jeopardize the safety and enjoyment of over 28 million people who annually visit Illinois state parks and historic sites."

Dean responded to action by the Senate Appropriations Committee, which cut $30 million in money for new state projects Thursday night and another $25.6 million Friday morning in reappropriations for projects already obligated.

The committee did approve, however, the reappropriation of $90 million for continued Downstate school construction projects.

'Great Ape Week'

Mayor Richard J. Daley plans to declare next week Great Ape Week in Chicago — because a new monkey house is opening at Lincoln Park Zoo.

The mayor also plans to dine by candlelight Wednesday night at treetop level in the new Great Ape House with major zoo contributors while chimpanzees, orangutans and gorillas swing on their junge gyms and monkey bars nearby.

From Thursday through Saturday, the movies "King Kong," "Planet of the Apes" and "Mighty Joe Young" will be shown in the old monkey house.

The new ape house was funded by Lincoln Park Zoo and the Chicago Park District.

Faulty brakes cited in fatal bus crash

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Faulty air brakes apparently caused the wreck of a charter bus that killed 28 Yuba City High School choir members and an adult adviser, the California Highway Patrol disclosed Friday.

The patrol said one student told investigators that the driver pumped the brakes numerous times and had a "panic-stricken" expression as he mumbled, "Oh, my God" before the bus crashed in Martinez, Calif., on May 21.

Com. Glen Craig said the accident did not appear to be the result of driver "inattention," but a final accident report will be given to the district attorney in Contra Costa County to determine if any criminal acts occurred.

Noncandidate Hubert talking more and more like a you-know-what

by IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International

As it has so often this year, the noncandidacy of Hubert Humphrey rose over the Democratic presidential campaign Friday, even as the former vice president prepared to accept the endorsement of his state party for a fifth term in the Senate.

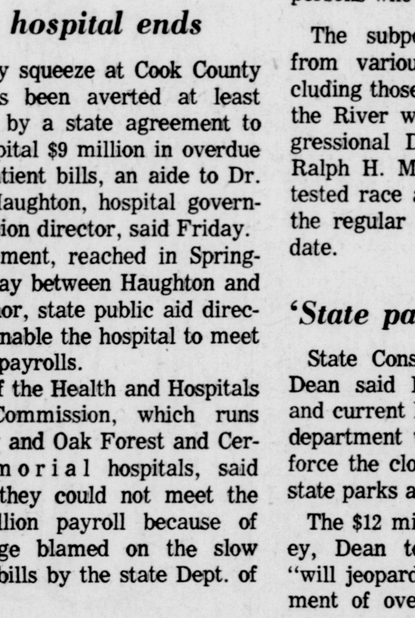
In Washington, President Ford bragged about new economic figures he said indicated his anti-inflation policies are working. He said the good news might help him in the primaries next Tuesday in New Jersey, Ohio and California.

But it was the Democratic race and Humphrey's role in it that dominated the political scene Friday.

In short order:

• The New York Times quoted Humphrey as saying he may actively become a candidate for president if frontrunner Jimmy Carter does badly in Tuesday's triple-primary finale.

• Morris Udall said he will have to stop not only Carter but Humphrey as well.



SEN. HUBERT HUMPHREY

• Carter said a Humphrey nomination would be "divisive" and present the party with a "major obstacle" in the November election.

• Humphrey said he could take Ford "to the cleaners" if they ran against each other for president. But Humphrey said he doesn't think he will be nominated.

"You generally don't get what you do not seek," he said in Minneapolis. He said again he will reassess his noncandidacy after Tuesday's primaries.

Speaking of Carter, he said, "If he has 1,300 (of the 1,505 delegates needed to win), then I think it would be futile" to enter the race. "Jimmy Carter obviously has the lead. He has lost some momentum but not slipped."

In the Times interview, Humphrey was quoted saying, "I have the sense he's lost a lot of his zip."

Humphrey also said he hopes President Ford is the GOP nominee.

"He is a first-class Republican, as I am a first-class Democrat. I could take him to the cleaners," he said.

The Minnesota senator said he thinks much of Carter's and Udall's support is "soft."

Udall said he is the second choice of most delegates and still has a chance to be nominated. "Jimmy Carter feels we all should have dropped dead after he got 700 delegates, or maybe after New Hampshire," Udall said.

Udall's constant attacks on Carter apparently have nettled the frontrunner enough to buy $45,000 worth of television time for a five-minute speech on all three networks Sunday night.

Carter news secretary Jody Powell said the speech would counter Udall's television commercials portraying Carter as a jack-in-the-box who is two-faced on some issues and who won't pop out of the box when other issues are mentioned.

In another development, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said there is a "good possibility" Henry Jackson may support Carter and release his 248 delegates. Nunn said he is a close friend of Jackson and that "Jackson and Carter have closer political philosophies than any other candidates in the race."

A Jackson aide said, "He's made no commitments to anyone and no decision on what to tell his delegates at all." Also, there is no assurance Jackson could deliver many of his delegates, some of whom are believed to be supporting Humphrey if Jackson releases them.

Within minutes after the economic statistics were released — showing unemployment down and wholesale prices rising at a slower rate than previously — Ford said, "These two signs should encourage the American people that the administration's job-producing program is a good one."

"By the sea, by the sea, by the beautiful sea. . . ." If you live in the Northwest suburbs you can dream all you want about beautful beaches, but unless you spend some time driving you'll have to settle for a pool.

Lake Michigan is only a short drive away and most communities along the shoreline open their beaches to non-residents for a fee. Head north and there are a variety of lakes with good swimming beaches and picnic areas. They're not easy to find, though. What looks like a nice lake on the map may well be restricted to lake residents only.

Following is a list of nearby beaches — good places to take the kids for a day. Most of them are already open and close Labor Day, unless otherwise specified. Lifeguards are on duty and many beaches offer boat rentals if you get tired of doing the backstroke.

LAKE MICHIGAN

Chicago: Free beaches open 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily. Calumet, Rainbow, South Shore, 67th Street, 49th Street, 31st Street, 57th Street, 12th Street, Oak Street, North Avenue, Montrose, Foster, Loyola, Leone, Hollywood, Hartigan, Humboldt, Douglas beaches.

Evanston: White House Landing, Central Street, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Central Park Beach, Clark Street, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Elliott Park Beach, Lee Street, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Dawes Park Beach, Greenwood Street, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; South Boulevard Beach, South Boulevard, noon to 5 p.m. Season pass, $6 per person. Daily fee: $1.50 adults, 50 cents, children 12 and under. Sailboat launch ramp at Church and Dempster streets.

Wilmette: Michigan and Lake avenues, opens June 12. 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Picnic area with grills. Season passes range from $18 for full-time students to $65 for family of seven. Daily fee: weekdays, $2.50 adults, $1.25 children and full-time students; weekends $3 adults, $1.50 children and full-time students. Sailboat launch and rental.

Kenilworth: Kenilworth Avenue and the lake, opens Monday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Season: $9 individual, $18 family. Daily fee: weekdays, $1 adults, 50 cents children under 12; weekends, $1.50 adults, $1 children under 12.

Winnetka: Tower Road, Elder Lane beaches open June 12. Picnic area with grills. Season, $28 family, $14 individual. Daily fee: weekdays, $1.50 adults, 75 cents children; weekends, $2 adults, $1.50 children. Sailboat and power boat launch at Lloyd Beach.

That smile.

It's the first thing that strikes you about the man in the magazine ad.

It is of the 'If I feel like it, I will kick sand in your face' variety.

The man is standing, chest expanded, muscles rippling, while two scantily dressed women drool over both bulging biceps.

He is the Charles Atlas-Steve (Hercules) Reeves archetype. He labors four or five hours daily, lifting amounts of weight which should be measured by the ton instead of the pound.

But to a much larger group of exercise enthusiasts, this is a makebelieve image.

This new group is interested only in keeping in shape and probably will never replace the muscle beach men in the ads. For what this new generation does is not glamorous.

It is just very healthy.

"People are interested in getting healthy," says Steph Jankelevich, assistant manager of the Chicago Health Club's Mount Prospect branch. "They see it on the television and in the newspapers and they hear it on the radio — get healthy, get healthy, get healthy. People want to live past 52 years old."

So these persons are heading to health clubs and gyms. Some work out on basic equipment like bicycles. Others push themselves on more complex equipment, like the universal gym. The objective in all cases, however, is fitness.

Byron Royer is 62 years old. He is a man who has come to appreciate the importance of fitness. He's become an active participant at the Schaumburg Health and Tennis Club in the past four weeks, working out on weight room equipment.

"My wife and I both believe that the middle years, leading up to retirement, after the kids are gone, are very important ones to be healthy," says Royer. In the background of this equipment-filled room, others are working out, their faces often grimacing. Huge mirrors reflect their images.

Royer became involved because, "I teach at a theological seminary, and I was telling my students how I recommend places like this. I figured I better do it myself if I was going to tell them to do it," he explains.

Royer isn't the only participant in the Schaumburg club who is over 60 years old. "They don't want to encourage death. So they get involved in things like the sauna, the steam baths, the bikes. These kinds of things will help them." says Miles Joyce, men's fitness manager.

The average age of participants, says Joyce, is between 20 and 45. "That's a pretty wide dispersal. We get some people who are in pretty good shape but are starting to get out of shape. Others, maybe, are married 10, 15, 20 years, and they're starting to see themselves fall apart," he says.

One 42-year-old participant who wished to remain anonymous ("Some of the guys at the office might start saying 'Oh, so he's out of shape, huh?' ") isn't exactly falling apart. But he's not in shape, and that disturbed him.

"I have a desk job, and I just realized that I needed to get some exercise and take a little bit off this," he says, patting his oversized stomach.

He believes more men in his position are starting to subscribe to the health movement. "There's so much publicity," he says. "People are being told about things like heart disease."

It is heart and lung development which Joyce and other Chicago Health Clubs are emphasizing, with their circuit training techniques. "The first aim of circuit training," says Joyce, "is to get the cardiovascular system in shape. The heart and the lungs are the two most important organs you have."

In circuit training, the pulse rate is taken before and after working a circuit, a series of prescribed exercises on particular equipment. The rates are recorded on each participant's personal progress card.

The objective is to lower the pulse rate in a person by having him consistently follow the circuit exercises. The lowering of the pulse rate after the person has been performing the exercises for a few weeks or months is an indication that the heart and lungs are working more efficiently and the person is in better physical condition.

Circuit training," says Schaumburg club instructor Jeff Tagge, "is based on the idea of building from the inside out."

The Chicago Health Clubs also say they have a method of detecting how much of one's body is fat by taking certain body measurements. "The use of the everyday scale is an outdated procedure," says Joyce.

"We're trying to make it (working out procedures) as scientific as possible," says Tagge.

The results of using the scientifically developed circuit training, says Joyce, can be monumental. "Mind and body will change. Normal physical activity is no longer taken for granted. As he gets more into the exercises, he notices physical changes in himself. He has more endurance and he is more conscious of his body. The mental stimulation comes from looking forward to coming back and exercising some more."

The 62-year-old Royer agrees. "The students I teach say I walk with a different gait now," he says. "And I walk up and down stairs without huffing and puffing."

For many persons the first few weeks of working out are discouraging. It's a period when the participant gets stiff and sore and often hasn't yet seen the desired changes in his body. Some continue after this perplexing period; others quit.

"Some people just can't motivate themselves," says Joyce. "Some never will because they're just lazy."

"You have to work at it," says Gary Fanslow, an employee of Joyce. "a lot of people get into it for about a month and they're all gung-ho. Then you don't see them for about a year. You've gotta really want to do it."

Anti-muscle musclemen

Tagge says some of those persons return after the Superstars competition on television. "We have an incredible influx of people we haven't seen in a month," he says. "They say 'They can do it. Why can't I?' "

Walt Olsen, physical director of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, believes the reason persons are asking that type of question directly relates to more leisure time.

"And I think people are starting to put it to good use. You've got to be healthy to do that," he says. "People are starting to realize that you just don't climb on a bicycle and ride 10 miles."

For some participants, this interest in health is accompanied by a bit of fantasizing. Sometimes it relates to Charles Atlas. Admits one man, "I've always had the urge to be a Charlie Atlas. I would like to use my body in the same way a woman uses hers — as a social weapon."

But Joyce scoffs at the hard-core Atlas types. "It's not really healthy," he says of those more interested in heftiness than in healthiness. "It has little purpose, except to send those guys on an ego trip. I consider the Atlas type engaging in a neurotic pursuit. You might say Einstein engaged in a neurotic pursuit of scientific knowledge.

"He was totally oblivious to everything and everyone else. That's how these body-builders are. I'm not going to say it's unnatural. One of those big guys might come in and pulverize me."

Tagge, however, isn't quite as harsh. He believes even average people who work out are a bit vain. "Everybody's vain," he says. "I'm vain — everybody wants to look good."

But if the present health movement is any indication, more persons want to feel good, too.

Caesar Rodney honored

July 1 will see the release of a 9-cent U.S. postal card honoring Caesar Rodney, a Delaware patriot who made a dramatic ride from Dover to Philadelphia in 1776 to cast his state's vote for independence.

Rodney arrived on July 2 after riding 90 miles through bad weather. His vote was instrumental in the approval of a resolution for independence drafted by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, a resolution which led to the adoption on July 4 of the final text of the Declaration of Independence.

The Rodney card is the sixth in the Patriots series. Others have honored Paul Revere, John Hanson, Samuel Adams, Charles Thomson and John Witherspoon.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Caesar Rodney Card, Postmaster, Dover, Delaware 19901" enclosing the proper remittance which is 9-cents for the single card and 18-cents for the double reply-paid card. Payment should be by check or money order and collectors are asked to supply self-addressed stamped envelopes for return of the cards under cover.

Daley to dedicate new ape house in Lincoln Park

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley will dedicate the new Great Ape House at 9:30 a.m. Monday at Lincoln Park Zoo.

The house, a joint project of the Chicago Park District and Lincoln Park Zoological Society, is the new home for the zoo's gorillas and orangutans. The house contains six habitats and a nursery under a large skylight dome. An outdoor habitat is connected to the main building.

Keeping with the zoo's philosophy, there are no bars between the animals and the public. Instead large glass windows allow perfect viewing and keep the animals in a relatively germ-free environment.

The house will feature slides showing apes in their natural habitat. The first level also has animal exhibit areas, and a kitchen.

The zoo has the largest collection of great apes, with 15 gorillas, 11 orangutans and 14 chimpanzees.

Hatch in 'Streets' role

Richard Hatch has been signed to play the role of Inspector Dan Robbins in ABC's "Streets of San Francisco," replacing Michael Douglas who leaves the series to pursue film interests.

Hatch portrays a police detective teamed with Mike Stone (Karl Malden) when Steve Keller, played by Douglas, decides to quit the force to become a teacher. Hatch has appeared in episodes of "Kung Fu," "Medical Center," "Cannon," and "The Waltons."

Loop's State St. parade to salute nation's birth

Chicago will salute the Bicentennial June 12 with a State Street parade.

In a salute to the flag, the parade will feature a variety of American flags. The parade begins at 11 a.m. and travels south on State Street.

Mayor Richard J. Daley has invited clubs, veterans, organizations, businesses, churches and fraternal groups to partitipate.

British, U.S. debate set

Oxford University challenges the University of Chicago on a Bicentennial topic: "Is the American Revolution unfinished business?" at a debate Monday at Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg.

The match, at 6 p.m. between the British and Americans, winds up a series of three contests and may be the deciding one. The contenders will debate in the mall's grand court.

Shelby Lyman on chess

An individual reflects the social situation that spawns him. It would be naive not to remember this truism when we consider the achievements of a Karpov or a Spassky or a Bobby Fischer.

A rare glimpse of the Soviet chess background is given in a recent description of the Odessa Chess Club by Yugoslav grandmaster, Svetozar Gligoric:

"While we were in Odessa, we visited the local chess club. Occupying an entire building, the club had around 50 professional trainers for the area. The library contained files on all the world players, including us, with hundreds of our games well arranged."

It is true that Fischer gloriously surpassed the top Soviet players. But is he not that proverbial exception that proves the rule? Else where are the dozens of other Americans to compare to the galaxy of grandmasters backing up Karpov?

Perhaps it was the travail of Fischer's solitary path that helped create the problem of temperament which has resulted in the forfeit of his title.

BEGINNER'S CORNER — hint and explanation: Black's kingside knight is overworked.

Larry Gilden is a player of exceptional attacking ability. But in the diagrammed position, from a National Chess League game, he has the choice only of how to lose.

The game as played in SOLVE-IT proceeded as follows:

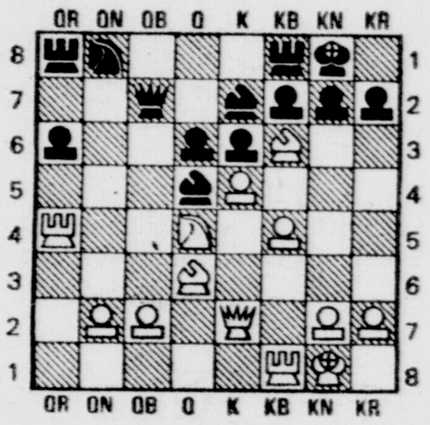
Christiansen	Gilden
15.	P-N3
16. P-B5!	BxB
17. PxB	P-K4
18. Q-N4!	PxN
19. RxQP	B-N2
20. PxP	BPxP

SOLVE-IT

AFTER 15. B-B6!

GILDEN



CHRISTIANSEN

WHAT IF ...PxB?

(See text & game score)

21. BxNP!	K-R1
22. Q-R5	RxP
23. RxR	resigns

But what if Gilden had instead played 15. . . . PxB. Do you see how Christiansen might have replied.

One possibility is given below:

15.	PxB?
16. BxPch!	KxB
17. Q-R5ch	K-N2
18. Q-N4ch	K-R2
19. R-R3	....

and R-R3ch and mate will follow.

Solution to REGINNER'S CORNER — the move 1. N-K6 wins the black knight. For 1. . . . NxN would allow 2.QxP mate.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

West opened one of those weak two bids that are fairly common today. A double would have been for takeout, so North passed. South really should have let the two hearts alone, but he hated to be shut out and tried two spades which North raised to four.

A diamond lead would have cooked his goose, but West opened the deuce of clubs and South was in business for a while. He led a trump to his ace and a second trump to East's king.

East cashed his king of diamonds and continued with the nine of clubs. South's jack forced West's king and dummy ruffed, but now South was one trick short of his contract. He couldn't get to his hand to take a heart finesse without using up dummy's last trump and could not avoid the loss of two more diamond tricks.

South could have made the contract after taking his ace of trumps, if he had led a heart to dummy's queen.

He would have been mighty lucky, but good play would have given luck that chance to take over.

Susan Clark

Jim Hartz

Q. I saw the television movie "McNaughton's Daughter," with Susan Clark as an attorney, and felt it was one of the most interesting dramas offered by NBC this year. Is this going to be a regular series?

A. Unfortunately, no plans are being made to go on with more episodes.

Q. I heard Shirley Temple was originally wanted for the role of Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz." What happened?

A. Producer Mervyn LeRoy had to fight like crazy on three points; MGM wanted to drop the project when Shirley was unavailable; they didn't want to approve Judy Garland for the role; and the studio brass didn't like the song in the first act. "Over the Rainbow" didn't make sense to them. Aren't you glad LeRoy won?

Q. Can you tell me the name of the Irish lady that sang with Arthur Godfrey's show? She did a lot of solo work and had a beautiful voice.

A. Carmel Quinn.

Q. Is, or was, Barbara Walters' salary higher than the "Today" show's co-host Jim Hartz?

A. Almost twice as high — Walters draws $700,000 to Hartz's $350,000.

Q. My father says Cloris Leachman on "Phyllis" played on the "Lassie Show." Is he right?

A. Cloris Leachman played on the show years ago for a short time. She was unhappy with the arrangement and it was quickly terminated.

Q. Whatever happened to Olivia Hussey, the pretty girl who played Juliet in the movie "Romeo and Juliet"? How old is she and is she still acting?

A. Olivia Hussey has been married to Dean Martin's son, Dino. She's 23 and still acting. At the moment she's portraying Virgin Mary in Franco Zeffierlli's six-part version of "The Life of Jesus."

Q. Who are Judy Garland's daughters?

A. Liza Minnelli and Lorna Luft.

Vicki's a gourmet cook

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vicki Lawrence, who won an Emmy this year as best supporting actress in a musical-variety series, has been a mainstay on "The Carol Burnett" show for eight years.

After winning the Emmy, Vicki told the audience, "I can't think of anyone I'd rather look like than Carol."

The women do bear a family resemblance and off screen they are as close as sisters.

In private life Vicki is the wife of Al Schultz, a television makeup man. They are the parents of a daughter, Courtney, who celebrated her first birthday this year.

They live in Benedict Canyon in a brand new three-bedroom home, complete with servants' quarters. A nurse for Courtney is a must with both her parents working.

Vicki has strong tastes of her own and that fact, coupled with unhappy experiences with decorators in the past, led her to furnish and select the decor of her new home.

The dwelling has a Spanish exterior. Inside, one feels the warmth of an English country house.

A large and beautiful floral carpet of rusts and greens adorns the living room beneath a soaring beamed ceiling. Picture windows provide a spectacular view of the hills.

Lovely needlepoint cushions, wall hangings and pillows are Vicki's handiwork.

There is a generous fireplace in the game room, along with a billiard table, juke box and an antique traffic signal.

Both Vicki and Al are collectors of off-beat antique conversation pieces — boxes, canisters, gumball machines, scales and quilts. The house is softened and enriched by numerous indoor plants.

A day bed, of all things, can be found in a kitchen alcove where normally one would find a breakfast table. The bed is for Courtney who keeps her mother company when Vicki does the cooking.

There's a swimming pool and patio outside the kitchen door. The barbecue gets frequent action from Al who broils lobster, steaks and chops.

The Schultz family includes a pair of mutts, Sam and Duffy, and Blossom, a golden retriever. But the lion's share of attention for the time being goes to two bird families who have nested in hanging potted plants in the patio.

Vicki spends more time in the kitchen than many television performers. She is proud of her spaghetti, meatloaf and beef stew. Al recently bought her a fancy French cookbook and was rewarded with an outstanding fillet of sole dish.

Al and Vicki are weight conscious and embark on frequent diets. On those occasions the maid-nurse does the cooking.

When the Burnett show is in production Vicki works from noon until 5 P.M. Monday through Wednesday. On Thursday the company blocks out the show from 11 A.M. until 6 P.M. Friday is tape day which keeps cast and crew busy from 9 in the morning until 9 at night.

The schedule is perfect for Vicki because it allows her to be with Courtney every morning but one. As often as not, Courtney and her nurse spend the afternoons at CBS in and around Vicki's dressing room.

For relaxation Al and Vicki go sailing on their 28-foot sloop. On long summer evenings they enter local races.

Vicki stays in top physical shape by working out regularly in a gym. She also plays tennis but is inclined to throw her racket when she loses to Al who is a very good player.

They entertain one or two couples for dinner now and then. On special occasions Al rolls up his sleeves and produces impressive Greek dishes learned from his mother. Carol Burnett and her husband, Joe Hamilton — who produces the series — are frequent guests.

Elegant is the word for Vicki's wardrobe on the show, courtesy of Bob Mackie and CBS-TV. But around the house and at rehearsals she prefers to slop around in jeans and a T-shirt.

Vicki Lawrence leads a busy and contented life and hasn't any intention of changing it.

Shooting schedule 'back-breaking'

'Maude' may retire after 5th season

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Reading between the conversation, one gets the distinct impression that Bea Arthur and Maude have one more season together and that's all.

This coming year — the '76-'77 TV season — will be the fifth for the hit CBS show. And Bea Arthur, who has created one of the strongest characters in television history, seemed to be saying that would be the end of it, as far as she was concerned.

She is contracted for the fifth year. And she said that after that year, she has no plans to do anything else.

"I honestly don't know if I want to work again," Bea said. "Maybe I might do a special now and then. Or if a really fantastic play or movie came along, I'd do it. The thing is that the schedule we're on, doing Maude, is just so back-breaking."

She and her husband, director Gene Saks, have everything they want now. They are not troubled by dreams of glory, nor visions of oil wells. They are content.

The icing on their personal cake is their new home, which looks like an old home. The contrast is deliberate. To make the new house look old, Bea says, "took a lot of doing."

When they first came to California, when Maude began, they began a personal odyssey of house rental that has been horrendous. It colored, or discolored, their entire view of Los Angeles living.

"People make a living here," she says, "out of ripping off tenants. You pay the first and last months' rent and never get it back. We rented a place for $2,750 a month and stayed there one month.

"They kept our deposit. They said we'd ruined the house, that we'd let the plants die. That sort of thing happened to us three or four times, with three or four houses. So we decided to build our own place."

She and Gene have settled in and they never want to move again.

Bea Arthur: Maude

"I'm too old and too tired to go through that again," Bea says.

It's a beautiful home, low and rambling, built around some magnificent old trees. And, for the first time since they have been in California, they feel at home. Finally.

The whole family is content. Gene has a tennis court. Bea has a garden. And the two boys, Matt, 15, and Dan, 12, who are into music and film, have places to do their thing.

"It's funny about the boys," Bea said. "In one of my very first interviews here in California, the reporter asked about what effect Hollywood would have on the kids. I said it would have no effect at all.

"I said they had been around the theater all their lives and Hollywood wouldn't change them if Broadway couldn't. Well a couple of weeks ago, the kids took over the maid's room. Matt said he and Danny wanted to use it as a studio.

" 'OK,' I said. 'But just until I go back to work—then we'll have a maid again and you can't have it.'

" 'You know,' Matt said, 'there are a lot of things we don't have here.'

" 'Like What?'

" 'Like a sauna and a Jacuzzi.'

" 'Do you know how much money that would take?'

"'Oh, come on,' Matt said. 'You could play Vegas for two weeks and buy a Lear jet if you wanted to.'

"Another time, Matt said he wanted to learn the electric guitar. I said he should rent one. He said no, he wanted to buy one. He said the guitar he wanted — a Fender — was made by a company which was owned by CBS, and therefore I could get it at a discount."

The kids may have gone Hollywood, after a fashion, but Bea Arthur hasn't. In fact, the only problem she has is that the whole scene — her total fame — troubles her.

"I very seldom leave the house," she says. "Literally. It (the fame) stops me. If I don't go to the market early in the morning, I don't go at all. And I don't go to a movie or to the theater unless it's something I want to see very badly. It's too much."

Still, even though she closets herself at home, Hollywood manages to intrude on her paradise.

"The day before the Academy Awards," she says, "one of my car pool mothers — a woman I had never met — came over and offered to pick me up in a limousine and take me to the affair. That was very nice. But the next day, the woman came by with five copies of the Oscar program for me to autograph. I didn't know how to handle it."

She says she spends her hiatus in the house, wandering around, touching things. She picks up dead blossoms from the flowers in her garden and spreads fertilizer around.

Until Maude, she and Gene were adamant New Yorkers. In fact, Gene was dead set against moving to California. She says he called it a "cultural wasteland."

But he has been converted, mostly through strong doses of tennis. The fact that he can play tennis 12 months a year seems to outweigh the wastelandic quality of California culture.

Bea doesn't play tennis. During the shooting season, she has no time for anything except work. Maude is her life, during the six months of doing the series.

"I feel," she says, "that last year — our fourth — was far and away our best. Maude is one show that has grown over the years. It has grown in stature, in the writing, in the subject matter, in the acting. I feel we've become a very classy repertory company.

"I must say that I enjoy the show. I'm the opposite of most people on a long-run show — I'm terribly proud of Maude.

"And I just can't believe that people can make a lot of money out of doing what they enjoy doing."

She's doing just that. But she's paying the price.

Study contends TV ads sway boys to buy toys

Fifth grade boys are more easily swayed by television toy commercials than girls the same age, a study by two Marquette University researchers indicates.

A related study of first, second and third grade children showed more than two-thirds of the children who watch commercials believe their parents will buy the products for them.

The studies were made by psychology Professor Anees A. Sheikh and graduate assistant L. Martin Molleski.

THE FIFTH GRADE children were asked how much they would be willing to pay for toys after seeing a commercial and how much they would pay after seeing the actual product.

The researchers said the study showed fifth grade boys who watched the commercials estimated higher prices for the toys than boys who saw the actual products. Girls estimated about the same price for the toys under both conditions, they said.

One reason the girls may be more consistent in their estimates and not as easily persuaded, the researchers concluded, was that girls tend to do more shopping with their mothers and are more aware of prices.

In the study of first, second and third graders, the children were asked to complete a story about a child watching a television program interrupted by several commercials for a new toy.

More than 90 per cent said the child felt like asking his parents to buy the toy and 57 per cent said the child did ask the parents.

More than 66 per cent said the parents would buy the child the toy, Sheikh said.

Keaches like show-biz 'brotherhood'

Other pairs do only funny stuff, but Stacy, Jim share drama

by Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Show business brothers tend to be funny together but perform singly in drama.

The Ritz, Marx, Smothers and others gained fame and considerable fortunes by pooling their shenanigans.

But the Booths, Barrymores and recently, Bridges and Bottoms brothers generally marched to individual drummers.

Jim Arness and Peter Graves are brothers. So are Dana Andrews and Steve Forrest. Although close friends off screen, they never work together.

Stacy Keach has a brother named Jim whom he has worked and plans to work with more often in the furture.

Keach, 35, and younger brother Jim enjoy a close kinship. They live five minutes from one another on small ranches in the wilds of Malibu Canyon where both own and ride horses.

While the brothers Keach are perhaps less well known than some other show biz siblings, Stacy has distinguished himself on Broadway, in movies and television - notably "The New Centurions" and the "Caribe" video series.

Recently Jim and Stacy worked together in public television's "Orville and Wilbur" Special, another pair of brothers whose surname was Wright.

"I studied the sibling relationship while we were making the Special," said Stacy, a man of considerable charm and intelligence.

"Brothers run the gamut of human behavior from hatred to love, jealously, rage, anxiety, competitiveness and a special bond that is rarely shown on the screen.

"It's not often an actor can make a behavioral statement on the screen. But brothers playing brothers is a perfect opportunity.

"There is something special when two flesh and blood brothers portray brothers in a play or film that can't exist when two unrelated actors attempt to do the same thing.

"Because I'm older than Jim, I fell into our natural relationship when we did the Wright Brothers show. I took charge and found myself being critical and feeling protective.

"Jim and I are different and we don't look that much alike. But there are moments in our performances when I see mannerisms in Jim — vocal patterns perhaps, a movement or reaction.

"Our father is an actor, too, and often when the three of us are together I see myself and Jim in his mannerisms. Then I try consciously to behave differently.

"I'm fascinated by the reactions of brothers to one another. The Kennedy family was a great example of brotherhood. It can be a force for positive or negative things. With the Kennedys it was positive."

Brother Jim Keach came up with the idea of starring with Stacy in a new version of the Frank and Jesse James story. The Keach boys wrote a script.

But studios and producers are chary of making an expensive western without major boxoffice stars.

Stacy, a low key, relaxed sort of man, isn't uptight about the situation. "It's frustrating and hard on the ego to run into that attitude. But we'll get it done."

Currently he is directing and editing his television film version of "Six Characters in Search of an Author"

"We would like to involve the Carradine brothers and Beau and Jeff Bridges in the James story. They would play the Younger and Ford brothers who were contemporaries of the James boys in the West.

"The whole family structure of the frontier has always been simplified down to the level of the Martins and the Coys. There was a lot more to their relationships than that."

Stacy and Jim have plans beyond the western film. They would like to team up with one another in a movie biography of Edwin and John Wilkes Booth.

But first Stacy heads for England where he will star for Warner Bros. in the "The Squeeze" — without brother Jim.
